

Planners Delay Crenshaw Zone, Nix Trail Plan

A proposal to rezone Crenshaw Blvd. between Monterey Ave. and Sierra St. was postponed by the Torrance Planning Commission until Crenshaw is widened sufficiently to merit the change.

Planners indicate they are in favor of rezoning the area which would change it from residential to commercial, if the Crenshaw improvement is negotiated.

Firemen pumped thousands of gallons of water from the basement of the Hawthorne High School's administration building. The basement was flooded when a main pipe broke.

These top local stories and other highlights were reported exclusively in Monday's HERALD.

Success of a compulsory rabies vaccination law was cited in a detailed story, which pointed up the encouraging experiences of County areas which employ the law.

Torrance's City Council was to have voted on consistency of the regular meeting Tuesday evening.

Sportswise, the Lutheran Men's team lost their second Blue Streak softball game in a row, dropping them to third place in the league. They had held first place until they were beaten, 5-4, by the Fire "B" team and, 8-7, by the Elks.

Fifty high school football players from Torrance and North Torrance were in the city of the El Yuga Shrine at the North-South All Star game.

City officials and board members of the Chamber of Commerce were feted on a tour of North American Aircraft's Torrance facility. Ralph L. Long, North American public relations executive, and foreman Cecil Clarke and J. H. Hollingsworth were the hosts.

After an 18-month delay, the Regional Planning Commission approved a master zoning plan for the Palms Versa Hills area. The plan calls for a limited amount of restricted commercial area, lots varying in size from 7000 to 20,000 square feet and a quarry zone for the Great Lakes Carbon Corporation's diatomaceous earth mine.

The area was up for annexation to Torrance in recent months.

Horse lovers were thrown a curve by the Torrance Planning Commission, when that group vetoed a proposed riding and riding trail through the city. Action was based on the Commission's stand that the trail would be a threat to the vast number of homes and thoroughfares in this area.

Fileno "Ace" Acciavatti, 19609 Arden, is working on pilot enclosures at Douglas after chasing an elusive career in operatic circles.

He has studied at the Conservatory of Music, Boston, and in Italy and has had numerous classical roles. He hopes to get his baritone voice back into shape soon for another stab at opera singing.

One hundred and sixty-five Camp Fire Girls, Blue Birds, and Horizon Club girls from the Harbor area finished their annual summer day camp at Torrance Park. Crafts, cooking, nature studies and games highlighted their outdoor meetings.

The Accol Theater group attended a barbecue supper at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Heinlein. The affair was a project of the theater's building fund committee.

Alondra Park is in for vast improvements, according to an announcement by the Los Angeles County Recreation and Parks Department. A standard baseball diamond with lights and bleachers, construction of picnic areas and landscaping, totaling $143,225, have been authorized during the current fiscal year at the Southwest area park, according to a HERALD story Monday.

In addition to the above stories available only to readers of the HERALD on Monday, three pages of classified advertising give Torrance area readers a wide choice of buy and sell opportunities.

Are you getting the full story when it happens? If you want to be up-to-the-minute on Torrance events, phone the HERALD circulation office now at FA 8-6004 and ask to be added to this newspaper's growing subscription list.

Your carrier boy will deliver the HERALD each Monday and Thursday morning for 20 cents a month—or you can skip the collection bother by paying $2.40 for a year's delivery twice a week.

Picnic at San Diego
The fourth annual "Pomer Occasions" picnic is set for Sunday at Balboa Park in San Diego. Persons bringing lunches are asked to provide their own tables for the affair, which is to be held at Sixth Ave. and Palm St.

Tax Delinquent Lists to Be Given in Community Papers

Tax delinquents will get a better deal, effective next year, when a new law will be in effect authorizing the Board of Supervisors to publish the list of tax delinquents in community newspapers. They probably will print local delinquencies which must be published each June.

The new law was signed by the Governor, supplementing the original enactment of 1855 which required tax delinquents to be advertised in a single newspaper in each county.

The new law, making permissible the publication of the tax delinquencies in local newspapers on a distributive basis in order to give the public better notice, was sponsored by the

Hawthorne Celebration Ends Sunday

The eighth annual Hawthorne Community Fair and Hobby Garden Show started yesterday and will run through Sunday. It is sponsored by the Hawthorne Kiwanis Club.

Janice Barclay has been named Queen of the Fair and was crowned at a special coronation ceremony last night by Hollywood celebrity Dick Contino.

Hawthorne merchants and organizations, along with military units, have constructed displays in the Fair's big top.

Local newspapers will print the lists of local delinquencies once a week for two weeks in the same manner as the City of Los Angeles has advertised its lighting district delinquencies in community newspapers during recent years.

Air Patrol Cadet On First Leg of Trip

The first step as a Civil Air Patrol representative of the International Cadet Exchange to Norway came to Cadet 1st Lt. Michael Regan of South Bay Squadron 43 as he boarded an Air Force Liaison plane last week at Lockheed Air Terminal, Burbank.

Michael flew to Hamilton Air Force Base, San Francisco, where he will meet other cadets from the Western Region prior to flying on to Bolling Air Force Base, Washington, D. C., for activities on a national scale and a reception by the President of the United States.

One hundred forty-five teenagers from 21 friendly nations have arrived in Washington, D. C., for a first hand view of life in the United States as part of the Civil Air Patrol sponsored Cadet Exchange.

Local Talent Puts on Show

A local talent show was held at the Hollywood Riviera Recreation Area on Wednesday, July 20th, which revealed some up and coming young entertainers, among whom were Jane Cobbe and Terry O'Halloran, who sang "Take Me Out to the Ball Game"; Marg Palmer, who presented a violin solo; Claudia Wald, who sang "Little Dutch Mina"; and Melody Mabin and Jeanie Dalmassius, who sang "On What a Beautiful Morning."

Walterians Send Letter Of Protest

Clarence Hoyt, head of the Walteria Civic Organization, said this week that group had sent a letter of protest to the Board of Supervisors objecting to a proposal to establish a dump near that area.

Sanitation districts have recommended locating the dump in mine excavations south of Torrance.

The Walteria Civic group bases its objection on the fact that such a dump would constitute an eyesore in the area. They also protested in the letter because of the anticipated heavy truck traffic, which, they say, will prove dangerous to children.

A WORD FROM THE TORRANCE MUNICIPAL BUS LINES:

WE ARE IMPROVING OUR EQUIPMENT!

To better serve the community of Torrance we are improving our equipment!

On Nov. 1st, 1955, we are pleased to announce, we are placing on our transportation system four new General Motors AIR RIDE buses. These new buses are outstanding in every detail! From the quietness with which they perform on the city streets to the comfort with which they seat forty-five people.

WE ARE PROUD

... to make this addition to our transportation system, which has served Torrance since 1941. As a consequence it is necessary to increase our rates on July 31st, 1955 to 15c for one zone, and 5c in addition for each zone line crossed, with the exception of north of Manchester and Hoover, which is 10c. Our fares have not been increased since April, 1950.

We will continue to serve, as in the past, the people of Torrance with courtesy and pride.
