

TEAC Re-elects Mrs. Boswell

Things were really jumping for a while at the Torrance Educational Advisory Committee meeting Monday afternoon, as the group heard a discussion of music in the Torrance schools, including a Dixieland band and kindergarten demonstrations.

The group also re-elected Mrs. W. C. Boswell to a second term as moderator and heard a discussion on recruiting of new teachers in the Torrance schools. Other new officers include Harry Van Bellehove, vice moderator, and Mrs. H. F. Heinlein, secretary.

Dixieland Seven
At the meeting, the "Seaside Seven," under the direction of Gordon Peirce, played the "Muskrat Rambly," "That's A Plenty," and "Mr. Taptoo," as a demonstration of instrumental music in the schools.

Mrs. Kay Loftus, kindergarten teacher at Riviera School, showed how singing, dancing, and rhythms are taught to her youngsters, with about 30 youngsters participating in the demonstration.

Music can be taught in elementary schools, even by teachers who can't sing, Mrs. Lyda Harris, Carr School teacher, told the group. Records can be used effectively, as she demonstrated in teaching TEAC participants a song.

Carl R. Ahee pointed out that the music program begun in the elementary schools is continued in high school, but on an elective basis. About one-fifth of the high schoolers participate in bands and choral groups, he said.

290 Employees Added
Torrance adds about 290 new employees each year and is constantly searching for new teachers, Robert Morton, director of personnel, told the group.

Some 250 students are moving into Torrance each month, he said, resulting eight new teachers and two new classified personnel—bus drivers, janitors, and others—to serve their needs.

At the present time, there are about 600 teachers and 250 classified personnel employed in the district. A certain amount of turnover—among teachers who move from the district or themselves have children—requires even more new instructors.

Constant Recruiting
To meet the needs of the district, the school officials are constantly recruiting new personnel, Morton said. Brochures are sent all over the country, and about half of Torrance's teachers come from outside California, he said.

Many teachers are recommended to the Torrance schools by teacher placement services or by other teachers in the local district, he said.

Teachers in local schools also try to interest their students in teaching, and last year, some 45 seniors indicated they planned to major in that subject in college. This year, about 30 seniors have indicated the same interest, he said.

Parents also can help by encouraging their children, Morton pointed out, and by cooperating with teachers.
