

The Lockheed X-7 search missile, which has just been announced as the missile that smashed through speed records by "zooming" through space at an unbelievable speed of more than 2500 miles per hour, will be on display during Torrance's "Salute to the Air Force" Oct. 14-17.

Sponsoring Chamber of Commerce officials stated that the new record breaker will be on display at Cravens and El Prado along with North American Aviation's F-86 Sabre Jet fighter and also a Ryan "Firebee" drone, the latter manufactured in Torrance at Ryan's new plant.

Paint Burns
Air Force officials said the run was so fast its paint was burned by air friction heating. Named the "Methuselah" by Lockheed Missile Systems in Van Nuys, the flying laboratory flew faster than any ramjet-powered missile, any ground-controlled missile, and any recoverable missile.

Although its actual speed was not disclosed, the rugged workhorse was believed to have flown faster than Mach 4; four times the speed of sound or about 2600 m.p.h. The X-7 is launched from a B-29 mother ship. A rocket booster pushes the missile to Mach 2, where the Marquardt Aircraft ramjet takes over for its supersonic dash into the stratosphere.

Radlos Data
After the missile radios performance data to ground crews, a parachute slows its speed and descent to a nose spike landing on the Air Forces' range near Almagordo, N.M.

The life expectancy of such a missile is usually three to four flights, but the one to be exhibited in Torrance was flown and recovered successfully 10 times, saving the government and the taxpayer over $350,000.

Other events during the celebration honoring the "Golden Anniversary of 'Air Power'" will be an evening showing of "Battle Hymn" on Oct. 16 at the Grand Theatre and a banquet on Oct. 17 at Ricks restaurant. "Miss Air Force" will be selected at 8:30 p.m. on Saturday, Oct. 5.
