Dear Ann: My mother died a year ago. She was dearly loved by everyone. Dad is the greatest. He was completely broken up and everyone felt very sorry for him.

A couple of months ago Dad started to take out a woman who is so opposite to Mother that everyone is shocked. She is loud, crude and possessive. She paws Dad and acts like she owns him. I must admit he gives her plenty of encouragement.

He takes her all over and says "The kids are crazy about her." This is not true, but of course we don't say anything. We love Dad and don't want to see him hurt. We know he will never find another woman to compare with Mom — she was such a lady — but we'd like Dad to select someone where the contrast isn't quite so evident. Can you help us?—MINUS COURAGE.

Dear Minus Courage: It's your father's privilege to make his own selection and you must accept it, no matter how poor the choice.

If you don't care for this woman, why put on a show of affection? Be pleasant and polite. Period. But don't try to break up this relationship, because your Dad knows better than anyone else what he wants and needs.

Confidential to DEPRESSED SUBURBANITE: Live one day at a time. Remember life by the yard is hard. By the inch—it's a cinch.

To learn the booby-traps of teenage drinking, write for ANN LANDERS' new booklet, "Teenage Drinking," enclosing with your request 20 cents in coin and a large self-addressed, stamped envelope. Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Copyright, 1959, Field Enterprises, Inc.
