Knight to Call Special Session To Study Education Legislation

Governor Goodwin J. Knight today announced he will call the Legislature into special session to consider a legislative program aimed at shoring up educational standards for California children.

Revealing his plans in an address to the Cloverdale Citrus Fair honoring Redwood Empire publishers, the Governor said that the special session will run concurrently with the budget session of the Legislature and will deal with these subjects:

(1) Legislation to increase the number of required courses in academic subjects in California high schools and the amount of time spent in basic subject matter instruction in elementary schools.

(2) Preparatory legislation to enable California to participate in President Eisenhower's proposals for federal scholarships.

The Governor took note of the long-standing controversy between proponents of progressive or life adjustment-type educational programs and those "who favor a more intensely academic approach," and declared that a "great number of responsible critics have been making a strong case in recent years against many progressive educational fads and follies."

Realities Ignored
"Why," he asked, "have realities often been ignored? Why have soft, snap subjects tended to drive out solid subjects? Why has education been watered down, and teaching often geared to a low level of accomplishment?"

"The root cause, many educators say, is that our elementary and high schools today educate all children, whereas in earlier eras only the more privileged children stayed in school beyond the lower grades. Therefore, it has been argued, a program geared to the needs of the academically uninclined has been necessary.

"Unfortunately, in the development and application of this program," he said, "good common sense often has been abandoned in favor of abstract theory... All too often the goal has been to minimize competition and avoid the challenge of failure, by insuring an easy and meaningless success for everyone. Ability cannot and should not be unrealistically equalized by setting up a handicap system... Children who can move ahead in new areas of study should not be denied that opportunity.

Must Keep Perspective
"That Russia is ahead of us in the training of scientists and engineers, there seems little doubt," he said. "In spite of that we must not lose our perspective and we must not retreat from our pioneering accomplishment of making 12 years of schooling available to every child. My hope is that we can strengthen that schooling and make it more meaningful for an even greater percentage of our children."

The Governor advocated "positive action by the Legislature to put meat on the bones of our education structure" by increasing the present minimum requirements for basic academic subjects at the high school level. He also recommended that the Legislature, in addition to enacting enabling legislation to permit participation in the federal scholarship program, pass a law to permit the State Scholarship Commission to administer the federal scholarship program as well. He said the testing program which is included in the Eisenhower program also should be explored by the Legislature.
