Recommends Committee Study Fairs

By VINCENT THOMAS
 Assemblyman, 68th District
 The fiscal affairs of the State Fair and the many county and district fairs have proved to be one of the tougher problems with which we have had to wrestle at the present session. The number of bills proposing changes ranging from their financial support to the particular state agency concerned with their operations indicates the wide divergence of opinion as to what should be done.

 State support is granted from the fairs and expositions fund, financed by horse racing revenues, and is based on a formula fixed by law. Critics of this situation have pointed out that it favors the smaller fairs, many of which have built up sizeable reserves from these grants, which do not revert to the state if unused. They feel these excess funds should be used for general state purposes.

Another measure sponsored by the fairs through their association would impose upper limits on the total amounts available for grants to various types of fairs, and would make the formula more flexible so as not to favor smaller fairs and to prevent the piling up of unneeded reserves. It has been estimated this bill would free $9 to $10 million annually for general fund needs.

TO SHOW how rapidly situations change in the last weeks of a session, it was only about two weeks ago that some observers were openly speculating on the possibility that no important fair legislation would be enacted at this session. Tied up in committee, the fairs' own measure appeared trapped, and authors of bills to make other changes in fair operations were having difficulties in moving them.

But within the past few days fair legislation seems to have taken on new life. The measure sponsored by the fairs has been favorably reported out of committee in substantially its original form. The administration measure was withdrawn from committee, and amended to make its provisions substantially the same as the other bill. Observers now think that one of these measures might pass.

BUT OUR CONCERN as legislators in fairs, their operations, and future is too serious to be needed by minor revisions in their financing. Many of us feel that these matters should be carefully investigated to lay the basis for sound corrective legislation. Therefore, special provision is being made in both bills for the creation of a new legislative study committee on fair matters.

This new group, to be made up of an equal number of Senators and Assemblymen representing all the geographical areas of the state would replace the present fairs classifications committee, would be given broad authority to analyze all phases of fair operation and finance, and instructed to report its recommendations regularly to the full legislature.
