Issue Green Stamps?

By BILL SCHIPPER—Sports Editor

What promises to be a red hot 1960 prep basketball season opens here Tuesday, but if pre-league attendance figures are any indication the local coaches may have to give out green stamps if they want to attract a crowd at home games. There hasn't been enough of a turnout at any of the three prep schools lately to stir up a storm at a sewing bee—let alone excite a varsity basketball game of the caliber played in Torrance.

What's happened to the ol' rah-rah spirit. Perhaps the buck admission price for townfolk is too steep for a game that'll take up only an hour of a person's time.

If that is a major factor, then maybe CIF and local school authorities will consider comparative admission charges at junior college and the university levels.

At the recent Sam Barry Memorial Tournament in Glendale, game watchers were set back only a half a buck for top-notch JC basketball.

Alumni and adults alike have expressed a vociferous gripe to me about "paying a buck to see a high school basketball game."

However, people will—and do—turn out to watch outstanding individual ballplayers and top teams. They did it for guys like Rich Ruffell and Jerry Mathews, Bob Moon, North's Ron Anderson, Gene Crenshaw, the Vanderpool twins, Russ and Ray, and El Camino's Tom Reddin and they will—or should turn out for the likes of South's Joe Austin, Torrance's Bill Reinert and Bob Weister, North's Ron Combs and Ron Jacobs, and El Camino's Harry Dinnel and Jack Runyon.

Tribe Could Surprise

El Camino basketball coach George Stanich has done an outstanding job with the Warrior quint this season, and he just might lead the Tribe to a surprise finish in the tough Metropolitan Conference race this season.

Without a single returning letterman, and only one '59 squad member returning, Stanich has molded a tough-to-beat outfit around Dinnel and Runyon.

Harry, a 6'3" center, is making Camino followers forget about all-Southern California JC forward Tom Reddin, last year's campus "Athlete of the Year," and Runyon is gradually becoming one of the outstanding junior college backcourt men.

Runyon is only 5'11" and weighs about 145, but is extremely quick and agile, is a good ball handler, and owns a good shooting eye. He was named to the Sam Barry all-tournament team last week after scoring 72 points in three games.

Stop Knocking

I hope now that the West Coast finally stomped a mid-western football team in the Rose Bowl that Pacific Coast sports journalists will stop knocking our brand of football.

What chance would you give a college of less than 750 enrollment of beating one of, say, 8,000, in basketball? Not much, unless the small school had a tremendous recruiting system. Apparently that's just what Hancock JC has, however, for the Santa Maria college is again going strong on the hardwoods.

Last month El Camino became the 78th straight victim of Hancock on its home court, 84-74.

However, the tiny college had three starters hailing from out of state. In fact, they were from the East, one from Ohio and two from Pennsylvania.

Last year Hancock was the "home" of John Rudometkin, who was the high school athlete of the year for this state in '58. Big John is now going great guns for USC.

I wonder if it's strictly the cozy "home town atmosphere" Hancock must have, or does "dollar diplomacy" attract such outstanding cagers?

The football huddle, like the feminine tea party, is an esoteric rite filled with mystery for most ordinary males. Much seems to be said, but usually it is only the participants who seem to know just what. Comes now a revelation of what went on in one gridiron get-together, just before a 79-yard touchdown pass play by pro quarterback Earl Morrall, who did a little signal salling a few years back for San Francisco's 49ers. Mr. Morrall speaking:

"It was our 8 look-in with green left slow, which is like a bend-in deep. It's not much more than a back dividing to the left, the same as a swing in a flat. We did it this time off our opposite, calling it from a 2-right." Oh.

Time Running Out On Hunting Seasons

Time is running out for hunters in California, the Department of Fish and Game noted today. Many seasons still in effect end today.

These include quail, chukar artridge, tree squirrel and abbits, other than jack rabbits.

The waterfowl season ends Friday, Jan. 8, and the season on bear ends Jan. 15, and that's it for California gunners until the early deer season, other than the hunting for wild pig in Monterey County. That season ends March 31.

Cal Club Announces First Practice, Training Sessions

Dick Hayward, chairman of the Cal Club's driver training program, today announced that the CSCC's first practice and training session for sports car drivers would take place on Sunday, Jan. 17th, at the Willow Springs course near Lancaster.

This practice and training session will not only furnish expert instruction to would-be competitors by some of Southern California's best sports car pilots, but will also afford experienced drivers a chance to get in a few hot licks for the busy 1960 racing season.

The training will be under the direction of Richie Ginther, top-notch big car driver who recently turned a few hot laps in a Ferrari Grand Prix car at Modena, Italy. Assisting Ginther will be Lew Spencer, one of the most outstanding production car drivers in the Southland.

With the practice and training periods divided into twenty-minute segments, it is expected that each car will get in at least an hour and a half of track work before the late afternoon desert breezes bring a halt to the activities.

A full crew of experienced Cal Club officials and workers under Hayward and the popular Dave Bracken will be on hand to assure a well-supervised event. All drivers will be covered by insurance, there will be adequate emergency equipment on hand, and the entire course will be under the constant observation of experienced race personnel. Full safety equipment, including rollbars, will be required for all cars.

The fee for the January 17th date will be $15.00 per driver, with three crew passes included with each car. Entry blanks will go out to all CSCC members in the next day or so and additional blanks are available from the Cal Club office by calling NOrmandy 1-3312.

Membership in the Cal Club is not required for this practice and training session and details on the driver training program are also available from the Cal Club office.

Amble Basketball Schedule Released by Rec. Dept.

The Wednesday night Amble basketball schedule has been released by the Torrance Recreation Department.

Games will be played in the Torrance High Girls' gymnasium at 9 p.m., according to Red Moon, adult athletics director.

"Amble basketball is designed to cater to the older fellas," Moon explained, with special rules. The main rules are the reverse of the '10 shooting' ruling, with a restricted shooting area, and free substitution.
