

American Standard Cited For Fair Trade Assistance

American Standard was recently awarded a citation by the Office of International Trade Fairs in recognition of its participation in U.S. Exhibits overseas during 1959. Developed to promote trade and to convey the story of our free enterprise system, the International Trade Fair Program received tremendous response in foreign countries for its presentation of American accomplishments and way of life. American Standard, which is on the Honor Roll of contributors, helped provide the government with products for these overseas fairs so that the rest of the world could get an honest look at the high level of American manufacturing. Through this co-operation of government and industry, U.S. products have been exhibited to more than 50 million prospective buyers in the principal markets of Europe, Asia, Africa and South America. In commenting on the effectiveness of the Trade Fair Program in demonstrating our free enterprise techniques, Walter S. Shafer, Director of the International Trade Fairs, said, "Other nations have not understood until now the hard-won American experience in the skills of production and distribution."

Church Club Meeting Set

The Mariners of the First Presbyterian Church of Gardena, 1957 Redondo Beach Blvd., will meet Saturday evening at 7:30. The Mariners are the married couple group of the church and they invite all married couples of the church to attend their meetings. This month they will forego the usual pot luck and meet for a Sadie Hawkins party featuring chips and dips. Cottons and jeans are the attire for this evening and square dancing is on the agenda. The Mariners are sponsoring the Bob Baker Marionette Show on March 19 at the church. Admission is 50¢. Time is 2:45 p.m.

Temple to Get New Torah at Special Rites

A Torah Dedication Service will be held at the Southwest Temple Beth Torah in Gardena next Sunday, March 13, with Rabbi Henry Kraus and Cantor Harold Stein officiating. The Torah which is being presented to the Temple contains the five books of Moses and is hand written with a quill on parchment paper. It is read in the synagogue during the Sabbath and holiday services.

Every synagogue has at least one Torah which is housed in an Ark, it was explained. Next Sunday also will mark the holiday of Purim which is the Jew's day of laughter and the time to display the greatness of his soul and his unswerving faith in his God and people, Rabbi Kraus reports.

A barbecued chicken dinner will be served during the afternoon from 2 to 7 p.m. Coed Wins Bank Award Janice Shirley, 19, of 317 W. 220th St., a student at Harbor College, has been awarded a cash prize of $100 in the Bank of America program. She won the award in secretarial and clerical studies.

Expansion of the Independent-Review into a realty newspaper serving Los Angeles County was announced today by Lester S. Shafton, publisher.

Published twice a week, the 43-year-old newspaper has taken a new approach and format to report the happenings in the local real estate market. Realtors, investors and readers interested in real estate conditions will find informative and current news coverage.

Shafton recently moved here from Tucson, Ariz., where he published The Daily Reporter, a similar newspaper. After his graduation from Harvard Law School in 1938, Shafton practiced law in Chicago until moving to Tucson with his family in 1947. He is married and has two sons, one a practicing attorney in Los Angeles, and the other a senior at the University of Arizona.

In announcing the publishing change, Shafton said the address will remain 220 West First St., Los Angeles, and that The Independent-Review will enable the community to be fully informed on all real estate news and trends.
