Dear Ann Landers: I'm a married man whose wife went to work in a plant three years ago. She is a good person but the type that everyone takes into his confidence and tells his troubles to.

The other day she was telling me about a man who has a coffee break with her a few times a week. This man is unhappy in his marriage and said to my wife, "If I could meet a woman like you, I'd leave my old battle-axe tomorrow."

It made me mad. Do you think this is any way for a married man to talk to my wife? Should I suggest that she quit her job over there? I don't need THIS kind of trouble — HUSBAND IN JEOPARDY.

Dear Husband: I can't see that you have any trouble but you could sure whip up some in a hurry if you worked at it.

If your wife had any romantic notions about this man she surely wouldn't be wising you up. The fact that she speaks openly is a healthy indication.

Asking her to quit her job on the evidence presented in your letter would make you look like a jealous sorcerer, and it may give her ideas she never had before.

Are your parents too strict? You can benefit from the experiences of thousands of teenagers if you write for ANN LANDERS' booklet, "How To Live With Your Parents," enclosing with your request 20 cents in coin and a large, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

This shoe has fooled a lot of smart people. If you held it in your hand, you'd swear it came from one of the expensive shops. If you turn it over, you'd see that the heel facing and the sole are cut in one continuous piece—smooth and seamless. (The best shoes are made that way.) Now nobody's going to notice that once the shoe's on your foot (unless you like to kick up your heels now 'n then), but it's very reassuring. Also note: the heel is unbreakable (we tried). There's a lifetime lift (the shoe's lifetime, not yours). The fashion itself has a priceless look. It's the slender, elongated silhouette that's making fashion history. What's the catch, then? With all those quality features, how come so inexpensive? No mystery. We're the U.S.A.'s biggest shoe chain. (In volume, there is savings.) Hence, just 6.99 Thom McAn
