GOP Club President Seeks Aides

A call for volunteers to staff the local Republican headquarters was sounded this week by Tom Brewer, president of the Torrance Republican Club, as he addressed a group of voters at the headquarters at 1406 Cravens Ave.

"Since so much interest is being found in the local and presidential elections in the Torrance area, more volunteers are needed to staff the office," he said. "Information on the qualifications of the candidates and issues which vitally affect the welfare of this community needs to be put in the hands of the voters," he added.

So many voters have visited the local Republican headquarters since the first Nixon-Kennedy debate that it is almost impossible for the present staff to handle inquiries pertaining to the issues and to the candidates," he said. The local headquarters is now open seven days a week.
