Variety Noted In AAUW Program For New Year

Creative Arts Study Group of the Palos Verdes-Rolling Hills Branch of the American Association of University Women are starting their year's activities in a wide field that include portrait painting, the making of ceramics, the reading of books and plays, and the discussion of current problems, according to Mrs. Harry G. Petterson, Creative Arts chairman.

The portrait painting class has been fortunate in obtaining Otto Sieberg as teacher and is meeting each Thursday except the third Thursday of the month, when the general meeting of the branch is held. The class, which begins at 7 is held at the home of Mrs. Lawrence T. Dailey, 179 Via Los Miradores, Redondo Beach. Mr. Sieberg will also teach work in pastels and in landscape painting to any who are interested.

Mrs. Petterson announces that a second class in painting has been arranged with Mr. Sieberg as teacher to meet at Mrs. Dalley's home on Monday evenings at 7. There is room for one or two more pupils in this class. Husbands are welcome to participate as well as friends, who need not be A.A.U.W. members.

The Book section, under the leadership of Mrs. Dean C. Dunleavy, does more than read books at random. They choose topics for study and read books, magazines, reports, etc. all dealing with the chosen topic. This section meets on the second Monday of each month at 9:30 a.m. in the homes of various members.

The drama group is now a member of the California Drama Exchange and meets each month to read a current play supplied by the exchange. Any drama enthusiast should contact Mrs. George Culbertson, the chairman, for information.

The evening discussion group, with Mrs. Robert L. Larson in charge is made up of dynamic young women eager to attack any new frontier of thinking, plus a few old ones too. They read widely and discuss their findings on such subjects as the current school situation, better teachers' training, etc. Mrs. Larson will be glad to give information to anyone interested in joining this group.

Mrs. Petterson is formulating plans for field trips to various art museums during the year. There are also tentative plans for a creative writing class, and for a choral group, if enough people are interested.
