

Disneyland 'Parade of Nations' To Be Previewed Sunday, Dec. 18

Disneyland's gala Christmas Festival, which annually presents colorful holiday customs from around the world, will preview a spectacular new dimension for the 1960 celebration on Sunday, Dec. 18 as part of the "Parade of All Nations."

Biggest single parade ever held in Disneyland, this year's "Parade of All Nations" will spotlight more than 3000 costumed participants, dressed in the holiday manner of 31 nations and enacting age-old yuletide customs of these far-flung lands. It will begin at 1:30 p.m.

THE PAGENTRY, depicted by Southern California groups who still preserve ancestral ties to nations on five continents, will include 36 song and dance groups, 15 marching bands, 15 decorated floats, and Christmas trees trimmed to represent the traditions of 12 countries.

But the "show-stopper" will be the preview of another Walt Disney "first"—a "Parade of the Toys."

DISNEY ARTISANS have created 118 huge animated toys—performing wooden soldiers, clowns, trains, dolls, jack-in-the-boxes—ranging in height from six to 12 feet.

Additionally, the "Parade of the Toys" includes the unique animated "mousetrap band," giant knights on horseback, horse-riding toy cavalry troops and, of course, a Disney-style Santa Claus sleigh and eight comic reindeer.

PREVIEWED ON Sunday, Dec. 18, as part of the "Parade of All Nations," the Parade of the Toys will also be featured at Disneyland daily for eight days, beginning Christmas Day and continuing through New Year's Day.

Sharing the spotlight with the giant "toys" in the "Parade of All Nations" on December 18, will be the presentation of many foreign customs. Among them will be England's Boar's Head celebration, Austrian and Dutch versions of St. Nicholas parades, Mexico's breaking of the pinta, Germany's procession of Star Singers, Sweden's St. Lucia singing-march, and the traditional Wisteria Maiden of Japan.

EQUESTRIAN and animals—kangaroos, elephants, camels, bears and ostriches—will also march down Main Street in Sunday's parade.

Other special activities on Sunday, December 18 at Disneyland are All-Nations' Folk Dancing, featuring parade groups at four locations following the parade; and a massed Candlelight procession. The latter includes 600 choir members, presenting a combined rendition of "Glory of the Lord" and the "Hallelujah Chorus" from "The Messiah."

THE POPULAR Disneyland caeterers, dressed in Dickens era costumes and singing holiday songs, and the Disney characters—Mickey and Minnie Mouse, Chip and Dale, the Mad Hatter, etc.—will also entertain during the holidays at the Magic Kingdom.

Aeronca to Build Wing Sections For Air Force's New B-70 Bomber

Aeronca Manufacturing Corp. has been awarded a contract to produce brazed stainless steel honeycomb sections for the recently expanded B-70 Valkyrie program, it was announced today.

The Aeronca firm holds a similar contract for the prototype B-70 project. Both awards were made by North American Aviation, the prime contractor for the Air Force's new supersonic bomber.

According to John A. Lawler, Aeronca's president, Aeronca will make brazed stainless steel honeycomb panels for the fuselage and large brazed boxes for several different sections of the 2000 mile an hour bomber's wing. Lawler said the production will be handled in a building constructed especially for the original B-70 program before the project was cut back by the Air Force last December.

run over several years, he revealed.

The B-70 expansion was authorized Oct. 31, when the Defense Department beefed up the B-70 program by increasing the funding for this fiscal year from $110,000,000 to $265,000,000. The previous effort authorized a prototype airplane only while the expanded program calls for a high speed bomber containing military components, such as bombing, navigation and defense systems. When completed, the B-70 is expected to cruise at a speed of 2000 miles per hour above 70,000 feet in the aerodynamic heat region of approximately 550 degrees.

IN ANNOUNCING the award of the new B-70 contract to Aeronca, R. H. Rice, president of the Los Angeles Division of North American Aviation, wired Lawler:

"It is a real pleasure to welcome Aeronca as a member of the B-70 team . . . We certainly have a great deal of confidence in Aeronca's capability as a result of the progress you have made to date on the wing sections for the B-70 prototype and we know your effort in the forthcoming program will be of the same high caliber."

Lawler replied that North American Aviation has done a magnificent job in bringing the B-70 airplane to its present state and "We are proud to have the opportunity to participate in its further development and all our people have been made aware of the tremendous responsibility we are undertaking."

HE SAID the total number of sections Aeronca will produce and the amount of money involved cannot be disclosed at this time. The contracts, however, are substantial and will
