Senator Tries To Trigger New Gold Rush West

Senator Clair Engle has introduced legislation to replenish dwindling U.S. gold reserves by re-opening the nation's gold mines.

The California Senator's proposal, a Joint Resolution, is cosponsored by Senators Thomas Kuchel (R-Calif.) and Francis Case (R-South Dakota) and is being introduced in the House of Representatives by Congressman Harold T. Johnson (D-Calif.).

Pointing to current gold shortages resulting from accumulation of U.S. dollars by other countries, Senator Engle said, "One sure way to help the gold shortage is to get more gold."

Senator Engle said, "We've got to move more gold into Fort Knox through the front door and stop the drain through the back door at the same time."

He called attention to a Wall Street Journal which said, with reference to the Engle plan, "Of course, there is plenty of precedent for subsidizing miners . . . but then added, "It does nothing about the causes of the gold outflow. . . ."

President Kennedy's program to balance the flow of dollars will assure that gold reserves are not again depleted when new gold starts flowing into the Treasury.

His Joint Resolution would authorize the Secretary of Interior to make incentive payments, over and above the price of gold, to domestic miners for a period of five years, long enough to restore U.S. gold reserves to the $23 billion level.

Senator Engle said that these reserves have slipped to about $17.5 billion today.

INCENTIVE payments would vary from mine to mine, depending upon what amount would enable each mine to get into production; but in no case would payments exceed $35 an ounce above the $35 market price.

SENATOR ENGLE said, "My proposal is aimed at restoring
