

YOUR PROBLEMS

by Ann Landers

"I Think You Owe Apology . . ."

Dear Ann Landers: Saturday night I had the gang in. There are eight of us couples in our late 20's and we've been friendly for years.

A few of the girls came into the kitchen to help me prepare sandwiches. One gal mentioned that Bonnie (made up name) was getting more brazen by the day. I asked what she meant, and she said "Her skirt is shorter than anybody's and she wears the blackest stockings and the highest heels in the crowd."

When I entered the living room I saw Bonnie sitting next to my husband looking quite sexy. I called her into the kitchen and impulsively repeated what the other gal had said. She really let me have it. Now I'm wondering if I should have kept my mouth shut. Do you think I owe her an apology? — IN DOUBT

Dear In: High heels and black stockings have been in vogue for some time. Unfortunately, the hemlines are up a trifle this season and they do creep a bit when one sits on a sofa. I believe what REALLY got you was that she looked pretty attractive when you spotted her sitting next to your husband. I think you owe Bonnie an apology.

Dear Ann Landers: A certain woman who moved to this city recently joined our church club. She embarrassed me something terrible the other day and I would like your opinion on whether she was right or wrong.

This woman has a name which is foreign and absolutely unpronounceable. I feel when people grow up in this country they ought to drop some of the European endings from their names and make it easier on Americans. I went to introduce this woman to some of my friends and I called her "Mrs. What-chamacallit." If she had any sense of humor at all she would not have blown up at me. She said in a loud voice "My name is Mrs. . . . if you don't mind." I could have crawled into the woodwork. What do you think of this? — JARRED

Dear Jarred: To every person his name is the most important sound in all the world. She had a right to resent being called "Mrs. What-chamacallit." No name is unpronounceable. Some names are more difficult than others but

HIGH FASHIONS FOR TWINS . . . What the younger set will be wearing this spring is being modeled here by twins, Kathy and Neal Campbell, nine year old twins of the W. R. Campbells, as Mrs. Harold Eisenacher and Mrs. Ronald Eisman look on. The children's clothing show will be followed by an adult show at the Mothers of Twins annual affair at the Hacienda on March 20.

Children's Benefit

Mothers of Twins Show Will Stress Doubles in Fashion

"Fashion Leads a Double Life" is the theme of the annual fashion show to be staged by the South Bay Mothers of Twins Club at the Hacienda Hotel in San Pedro at 7 p.m. on March 20. There will be two shows of fashions, one for children from 3 to 13 followed by top fashions in 1961 for adults.

The Sun Air Home for Asthmatic Children is the club's current philanthropy and will benefit from the show. Mrs. John Adams of San Pedro is serving as chairman.

Mrs. Michael Long of Torrance is the door prize chairman. The grand award of the evening will be a weekend at the Thunderbird Hotel in Las Vegas.

Mrs. Andrew Meier of San Pedro is serving as decorations chairman. Centerpieces on the 21 tables will be tiny pink babies in bouquets of pink and white forget-me-nots and ribbons. White candles tied with pink ribbons and place cards in the motif will further carry out the decor.

Mrs. Nellie Albers, organist, will furnish a musical background for the fashion promenade.

Participating in the children's show to take place during the dessert will be the following twins: Cheryl and Craig Dunn, West and Tom Heath, Carlye and Sherrie Myer, Kathy and Mark Walker, Jennifer and Susan Sowell, Joyce and Carl Jackson, Kathy and Susie Adams, Kathy and Neal Campbell, and Karen and Linda Karazewski.

Singles showing fashions are Toni Kay McKean, Kathy Alexander, Lucia Ann Vuoso. Fashions will be provided by the children's shops of the area. Mrs. Mac McKean of San Pedro will narrate the children's show.

Mothers of Twins who will model during the adult show, to be described by Marjorie Stockwell, will be Mmes. Rod Howard, Glen Smith, Ronald Eisman, David Wesson, Richard White, Ron Strawn, Harold Eisenacher and Gordon Anderson.

Those wishing tickets for the show may contact Mrs. W. R. Campbell of Torrance.

Guild Meeting On March 8

Hedgecock-Denton Vows Read in Church Service

In a mid-afternoon ceremony on Sunday at the First Christian Church, Miss Lillian Jane Hedgecock, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Lee Hedgecock, 1714 Arlington St., exchanged her wedding vows with Terry C. Denton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Claude Denton, 1543 214th St.

The bride came to the altar on the arm of her father. She wore a gown of lace detailed with a scalloped neckline and long pointed sleeves. The full skirt, which had a clover leaf design down the front, fell into a chapel train. A Juliet cap with a small front tiara held the silk illusion bridal veil. The bridal bouquet was of white orchids encircled by white roses and stephanotis.

Mrs. Elizabeth Harlicker served as the matron of honor wearing a lavender sheath with tulip overskirt and carrying pale pink carnations.

Bridesmaids were Miss Cathleen Martenson and Mrs. Bonnie James. They were also gowned in the lavender satin and their bouquets were of pale pink carnations.

Kathy McCuistian served as flower girl wearing lavender taffeta and the rings were car-
