Vernitron Names Chief Engineer

Bernard Levine, president of the Vernitron Corp., leading precision servo component manufacturers of Torrance and Carle Place, Long Island, today announced the appointment of Dominic J. Santogrossi as chief engineer.

Julian Spector, vice president in charge of engineering for the multi-million dollar firm, which designs and manufactures synchros and other precision components for automation and automatic control in computers, aircraft, rada, and missile-space projects, said that Santogrossi will take over the supervision of operations at the Torrance plant effective immediately.

Prior to joining Vernitron, Santogrossi was divisional chief engineer at Whittaker Gyo Division of Telecomputing Corp.; Research Specialist with North American Aviation; and a holder of key posts in engineering with Bendix Aviation-Marine Division, Daystrom Pacific, and American Bosch-Arma Corp.

He is the designed and developer of a number of synchros, servos, servo motors, and other components now in standard use in industry and the military.

Guest Minister Speaks Sunday

In the absence of the pastor, Daniel B. Weaver, who is in Northern California conducting revival services, the Del Amo Southern Baptist Church, 317 S. Broadway, Redondo Beach, will have as its guest speaker next Sunday, the Rev. Louis Kalincheck.

The guest is editor of the "National Voice," one of America's oldest newspapers published in the interest of temperance and alcoholic problems. He is a popular speaker at churches, clubs, schools, and has appeared on radio and TV. The public is invited to hear him.
