Drama Cast Kept in Dark About Ending

Thespian Troupe 1133 of Torrance High School has selected "Ten Little Indians," a suspense-filled mystery play by Agatha Christie, for presentation on April 29 and 30 at the Torrance High School Auditorium.

The plot of the play centers around 10 people invited and marooned on an island by an unknown host. On the mantle are 10 Indian figurines and as each figure is broken, a guest is murdered according to the rhyme of the "Ten Little Indians."

Not even the cast knows the surprise ending of who the murderer is. Miss Marcy Larson, the director, removed the last pages of each playbook in anticipation of keeping her cast alert throughout the entire rehearsals. The cast will discover the identity of the murderer at the dress rehearsal.

Members of the cast are Don Baker, Gary Blakley, Lynn Keller, Pat King, Charles Litaker, Carol Mathlin, Tim May, Bill Millef, Carol Porterfield, Noel Shire, and Jim White.

open again next Monday, April 25, thus ending double sessions there.

The 28-year-old building was completely earthquake-proofed in accordance with state law. At the same time, lighting, heating, and sound-proofing systems in the building were modernized and other needed changes made. Nine classrooms and administration facilities were involved.

With the end of double sessions, all classes again will start at 9 a.m., according to Principal Joe T. Brandon. Cafeteria facilities, however, will not be ready for use this school year, he said. Nearly 900 students attend Fern-Greenwood.

Work on the rehabilitation project started last summer. After considerable study of the problem, the board decided to modernize the facility rather than replacing it. School officials said the modernized structure will last as long or longer as the schools now being built. Cost of the work was about $280,000.
