Single Charge Holds Patrol Car Escapist

Only one charge — that of escape — was issued Friday against an ex-convict who overpowered a Torrance policeman, took his gun, fled in a patrol car and endangered scores of innocent citizens during his flight from officers.

Deputy District Attorney T. B. McNary issued the one-charge complaint against Earl F. Taylor after local police requested that six charges be lodged against the ex-felon.

Taylor, who has a police record dating back to 1943, was captured in San Pedro after a bullet-punctuated chase Tuesday in which the burly bartender wrestled a gun from a policeman and fled at high speed in the officer's black-and-white patrol car. He was captured in San Pedro after fleeing officers who attempted to question him in South Torrance.

IN ADDITION to the escape charge, police asked McNary to charge Taylor with robbery, assault, resisting arrest, auto theft and carrying of a gun by an ex-felon.

Det. Myles Hamilton said that Taylor, a three-time graduate of California penal institutions, admitted that merchandise found in his car following his arrest came from shoplifting forays in this area.

MEANWHILE, Taylor has been largely cleared of implication in the Sunday murder of a San Pedro cab driver. Los Angeles authorities said Taylor passed a lie detector test given Friday in connection with the slaying.

However, San Pedro sleuths were questioning him about various burglaries in their area. Taylor, who gave a Wilmington address, is slated to appear on the lone charge Monday before Torrance Municipal Judge Donald Armstrong.

McNary told the HERALD that he might add charges to the complaint if he feels they are warranted by the transcript of Taylor's preliminary hearing.

No Torrance Signs on New Freeway Link

Motorists on the newly opened Harbor Freeway to a point of intersection with Figueroa still won't know where Torrance is located if they rely on signs along the new route.

Drivers yesterday were able to use the freeway in both directions over its full length. The 190th St. turn-off still was closed north of 190th but cars could make connections by a sharp exit from the south on to 190th.

Appropriate ribbon-cutting ceremonies were held on Thursday with Supervisor Kenneth Hahn, Mayor Albert Isen, Councilman Nick Drale and other Harbor area officials taking part in the program. The freeway actually was not open to traffic until late Friday afternoon, however, due to delays for painting of traffic lanes.

Officials could not be reached yesterday to learn why the county's fifth city was not recognized in the familiar green and white direction signs along the new extension. The Harbor freeway is claimed to be the most heavily traveled thoroughfare in the world. Much of the traffic is bound for Torrance.

The bandit forced the clerk to put $9,300 in small denominations, into a paper sack and fled in a car parked outside the market.

Hiker Struck by Car As He Flees Attack

A 17-year-old hitchhiker was seriously injured here Friday when he ran into the path of a car while fleeing three attackers, according to police.

The victim, Roy W. Franklin of Gardena, said he was attempting to thumb a ride along Torrance Blvd., west of Maple Ave., when three youths jumped from a green pick-up truck and began pummeling him with their fists.

Franklin said he fled into the street between two cars and was struck by an auto driven by Edward Perry, 27, of 19337 Flavian Ave. The three assailants roared away in their truck.

Franklin was taken to Harbor General Hospital for treatment of cuts, bruises and possible internal hurts.

Perry said he was unable to avoid hitting Franklin as the youth dashed into the street directly in front of him.

A Penny for your Thoughts

With the Democratic Convention now a thing of the past, the HERALD Pennies reporter asked several at random,

"Did you follow and enjoy the Democratic Convention?"

Answering were: Mrs. Gall Spurgeon, 1732 W. 251st St., housewife:

"Yes, I followed it with a great deal of interest but it didn't come out the way I wanted it to. I think Kennedy is a smart man and a good one but I do think his religion will become quite an issue. Johnson is an excellent choice for a running mate, and the two make a strong team."

Mrs. James Rhinehart, 4629 Darien St., housewife:

"We certainly did, both my husband and I, though I think perhaps partly because we couldn't get much else on the TV. I was not too surprised to see Kennedy get the nomination. Now I'll be interested to see what the Republicans do at their convention. I am a Republican and will be interested to see if my views remain the same."

Mrs. Bonnie Porch, 24725 Pennsylvania Ave., Lomita, housewife:

"I followed it some but think too many of the stations carried it; far more than was necessary. I especially enjoyed Kennedy's and Johnson's speeches and was glad that Kennedy chose Johnson to be his running mate. I do think though that some Democrats will vote Republican because of the religious issue."

Mrs. Doris Daugherty, 21840 Bonita St., housewife:

"We'll I'm a Republican so I didn't follow it any more I had to. In the evening when it was televised, I was usually busy and when it would come on, the children would turn to a channel that didn't have it. I don't think Kennedy's religion will affect the results too much, as there are good people in all religions and I do think Kennedy will win, though I'm not voting for him."

Bill Shook, 232 W. 233rd St., Wilmington, Machinist:

"I think it was a most interesting and well run convention, and I was pleased with the results. I think Kennedy and Johnson are the two best men in the Democratic party so they have a strong team there. The Republican convention is so cut and dried I don't know whether it be worth watching or not."
