Area Hospitals Sponsor Clinics For Polio Shots

Doctors and hospitals in South Bay will join forces Thursday for the first of a series of monthly "polio clinics," according to Dr. William A. Taylor, president of Southwest District of Los Angeles County Medical Association.

Hospitals involved in the program will be South Bay, Torrance Memorial, Little Company of Mary, and Riviera Community.

DR. TAYLOR described the community-wide polio inoculation program as a public service effort involving the combined forces of South Bay's fast-growing medical resources of doctors and hospitals.

Hours at each hospital Thursday during which persons may receive polio inoculations, will be from 4 p.m. through 8 p.m. A $1 charge will be asked. The polio clinics will be continued at the four hospitals for an indefinite period on the last Thursday of each month, Dr. Taylor said.
