

Driving Tips Offered to Vacationers

Fifty weeks a year you work hard at a job, help out with community projects, attend church and service group meetings regularly, prod the youngsters throughout homework.

Then comes vacation. You have only two, perhaps three weeks, so you plan carefully. You're going to see California this year, drive all throughout the state.

WHEN YOU start, everything has been well prepared. The car has new tires, luggage is stowed, milkman has been notified, the kids are all in the car. No worries — you can leave them all behind for those 14 short but relaxing days.

Now, as you wheel out of the driveway, could the California Highway Patrol have one minute of your time? Could we ask you, in these few moments before you hit the open highway, to consider two things?

FIRST, let driving be part of your enjoyment. Don't make it a chore by trying to push too far each day, by letting minor traffic delays destroy your patience, or by giving in to anger when someone else makes a mistake. Allow the extra time you will need for meals, sightseeing and refueling.

Second, observe traffic law and highway control signs. They are designed to help, not hinder. Let them do their job; then you can more easily do yours — operate the car safely.

Finally, have a safe, pleas-Steinbacher is a former teacher at Waleria Elementary School.

ant vacation. The Patrol is sure you will if you devote those few moments at the start of your trip to consideration of the simple requirements for carefree, yet cautious, driving.
