Dutch Holland Returns As Marineland's Chef

Marineland Restaurant on the Palos Verdes peninsula is currently heralding the return of Dutch Holland as its new chef-de-cuisine. Appointment of Holland is announced by owner George M. Foster, who has assigned him to supervise the establishment's entire culinary activity.

First step taken by the master chef upon his return to Marineland, where he temporarily headed the kitchen staff when the restaurant first opened in 1955, was to develop a new menu that would titillate dining excitement.

Holland has enjoyed a long and distinguished career, having served with distinction in prestige kitchens and elsewhere in the food service industry. He comes to the Marineland Restaurant from San Antonio, where he directed the culinary operation of General Atomic.

Herald Staffman in Miami To Accept College Award

Three representatives from the El Camino College newspaper, the Warhoop, have convened in Miami Beach today at the Associated Collegiate Press convention to accept the Pacemaker award for the campus publication.

W. A. Kamrath, adviser to the Warhoop, Wayne Overbeck, commissioner of publications, and Gregg Peterson, editor-in-chief of the newspaper, will represent the college. Peterson is the sports editor for the Torrance Herald.

The Warhoop, winner of 15 consecutive All-American awards presented by the Associated Collegiate Press, was one of five university and college newspapers in the United States to capture the Pacemaker, emblematic of excellence.

In addition to El Camino, the University of Miami, the University of Wyoming, the University of Minnesota and the University of San Francisco will be honored with the Pacemaker award.

The convention, which will be held in the Hotel Fontainebeau, will have representatives from colleges and university publications throughout the nation attending.

This is the first time El Camino has been represented at a national ACP convention.
