

YOUR PROBLEMS
by Ann Landers

"Children Bear The Real Brunt"

Dear Ann Landers: I don't want advice. I just want to put into words what a broken home can do to a girl. Maybe it will make some so-called adults stop and think before they rush to the divorce courts to break up a marriage.

My dad and mother were divorced when I was 12. Mom was devoted to Dad but he met another woman and wanted his freedom.

Dad married the other woman. They had two little girls. As I grew up I saw them around town quite often. It hurt me terribly to see my father give them the love and attention that rightfully belonged to me.

I've been going with a wonderful boy. He looks a lot like my dad and has the same winning charm. I'm afraid to let myself fall in love. I couldn't bear to go through the torture my mother did.

Divorce has made me afraid of love and afraid of marriage. Thank you for letting me get this off my chest. — REJECTED.

Dear Rejected: Your letter expresses well what I've been trying to say for years—that children bear the real brunt of divorce.

I hope you will get professional help to allay your fears of love and marriage. Therapy has enabled many unhappy people to make a good adjustment.

Dear Ann Landers: Our daughter is 28 years old. She came home two years ago when her marriage didn't pan out.

Her father and I are not young any more and we make just enough working part-time to get by. We are trying to look ahead and save a little for the future because we know a pension doesn't go far these days.

Our daughter does nothing but eat, sleep, watch TV and talk on the telephone. She claims the only job she can take is one where she has flat feet and can't stand long. Yet she has no trouble dancing every night on those same flat feet.

Please tell us what to do. This girl has gone to business school and she has earned as high as $80 a week as a secretary. Thanks for any help you can give us.—OLD FOLKS.

Dear Folks: Spend one more dollar on the lazy hulk. Buy her a pair of arch-supporters and tell her to go out and find herself a job—any kind. Let her know that within 14 days she must pay you $20 a week for room, board, and services or out she goes.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm a girl 15 and I have a big problem. This fellow I've been going steady with is nice, but I am getting bored with him and I want to date others. Whenever I tell him I want to
