YOUR PROBLEMS
by Ann Landers

"Counting System Didn't Work..."

Dear Ann Landers: The letter from the wife who counted her husband's handkerchiefs to check on his fidelity brought back some memories. The counting system didn't work for me because my smart guy used paper tissue to remove the lipstick. It was his shirts that finally did him in. I discovered one day that he was not returning at night in the same shirt he had worn in the morning. When the facts were uncovered and his dirty laundry was hung out to dry, I found that half of his wardrobe was in a one-room apartment downtown — hanging with black lace lingerie. Heaven's Gift To Woman now has a fourth wife who is counting his handkerchiefs and I am supporting his three kids. Had I known that the child-support laws in this country were so archaic and utterly useless I would have washed and ironed without counting. It would have been much easier to keep my trap shut, and live in the hope that one day some babe's husband would put a hole in his head. —COUNT DOWN

Dear Ann Landers: My wife and I are faced with a serious problem. We have a four-year-old daughter who is bright and sensitive. My wife and I were thrilled at the news that another baby was on the way. We told Cindy that God was sending her a new baby sister or brother in January. She was very pleased and talked of little else for weeks. Our little son was born with a damaged heart and lived only 10 days. Cindy cannot understand why God sent her a baby brother and then took him away. We don't know how to handle the problem. Shall we stop talking about the little brother and pretend that he never existed? Would this be easier on Cindy? Please give us some advice. We need it desperately. — T AND C

Dear T and C: It would be wise to stop talking about the little brother, but to pretend that he didn't exist would be unrealistic and harmful. The youngster would soon sense that your story was a clumsy masking of the truth and then you'd have far more serious trouble. It would shake her confidence in your integrity and she might become fearful and insecure. Children know that animals and flowers die. Use animals and flowers as examples when explaining the mystery. MISS PATRICIA TRAVIS... September Nuptials

September wedding plans are being made by Miss Patricia Ann Travis, daughter of former Torrance residents Mr. and Mrs. Russell Travis, Miraleste, and Lloyd Raymond Beadle, son of the Raymond M. Beadles, 1827 San Ardo.

Both young people are graduates of Torrance High School and both are students at San Jose State College.

Miss Travis, a junior on the northern campus, is 1961-62 Homecoming Queen and holds the title of Miss Greater San Jose. A member of Chi Omega, she is majoring in elementary education. Her fiancé is studying toward a degree in business administration.

The wedding will take place Sept. 2 in St. Peter's Episcopal Church, San Pedro.

Jessome-Campbell Names Are Linked in Marriage

At a high-noon nuptial mass at the Nativity Catholic Church on Saturday, March 3, Miss Elizabeth Mae Jessome, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Jessome of Torrance exchanged her wedding vows with John Francis Campbell. Parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Roy S. Campbell of Compton.

Mr. Jessome escorted his daughter to the altar. She wore a gown of Chantilly lace and silk organza detailed with a fitted bodice, long pointed sleeves, a Sabrina neckline, and a floor length bouffant skirt. An all-jewel princess crown secured the French illusion bridal veil. The bride carried a bouquet of white iris and lilies-of-the-valley encircling white orchids.

All of the attendants were sisters of the bride. Miss Nancy Jessome was the maid of honor and bridesmaids were Mrs. Patricia Garland and Miss Kathleen Jessome. All wore azalea silk organza sheaths with overskirts and azalea pillbox hats. Each carried a bouquet of white iris tied with azalea ribbons.

man and ushers were Kermit Sadler, Jr. and Norman Sauter.

The Rev. Thomas Glynn officiated at the marriage and the mass. The children's choir of Nativity school sang. The 250 wedding guests greeted the newlyweds at a reception held at the Torrance Woman's club. Miss Donna Hammerstrom was in charge of the guest book.

The couple spent a honeymoon in northern California and are now at home in Torrance.

The bride was graduated from Nativity school here and the St. Joseph Academy at Orange.

Her husband received his early education in Compton and his master's degree in business administration at Long Beach State College.
