. . . Ann Landers

(Continued from Page 11) about ten minutes from us. Mabel has an uncanny knack of dropping in on me just as I am leaving to go to the market, the hairdresser or some neighborhood errand. I always invite her to ride along but she refuses saying she'd prefer to wait in the house. I always thought this was a little strange and now I know why. My young son was at home the last time she "waited" for me and she was unaware that he was there. He told me later that Aunt Mabel went through all our bureau drawers, that she tried on my hats and shoes and read the mail on my desk. I resent her snooping more than words can express. In fact, I am enraged. What should I do about this in the future?—AWKWARD POSITION.

Dear Awk: Simply tell Mabel that you refuse to leave her in the house alone while you do errands because it makes you feel like a poor hostess. Then INSIST that she ride along. This might be a perfect opportunity to liberate yourself from what I suspect is a chronic pain in the neck. You can suggest that she not drop over in the future without phoning in advance. Too often, good hearted and gentle people are at the mercy of anyone who has time on his hands and knows how to ring a doorbell.

To learn how to keep your boy friend in line without losing him, send for ANN LANDERS' booklet, "Nicking and Picking and How Far to Go," enclosing with your request 20 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope. Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of the HERALD, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Copyright, 1962, Field Enterprises, Inc.
