A Penny for your Thoughts

"At what age do you think girls should start wearing makeup," the Pennies photographer asked.

Mrs. Gene Beavers, 2122 Middlebrook Rd.
"I think light colored lipstick for junior high school girls is OK. Girls are probably wearing too heavy a makeup now at too early an age. I think they should wear a light makeup in high school also."

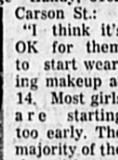

Mrs. William Harvey, 22419 Shadycroft Ave.
"I figure not until they are 14 or 15 when they are dating and for special occasions. Many young girls are wearing too much makeup but it's just a phase of youth like the twist."

Mrs. Robert George, 22904 Carlow Rd.
"I think they ought to be at least in high school before they start wearing makeup. I believe a little bit of makeup for high school girls is not bad, such as lipstick. They have beautiful skin and color in their lips and cheeks so they don't need makeup."

Mrs. George Handy, 5102 Carson St.
"I think it's OK for them to start wearing makeup at 14. Most girls are starting too early. The majority of the girls are wearing a light pink lipstick which is not too heavy."

Mrs. Lois Turcany, 25212 Doria, Lomita:
"About 15 so long as it is moderate and not overdone. In California I think most girls are wearing too much makeup, but that is the Hollywood influence."

GONE TODAY . . . Mayor Albert Isen and Ray Yanuti, manager of the Inglewood Farms Dairy at 3400 Del Amo Blvd., look over last of the dairy cattle at the local plant before they were trucked to farmlands outside the city this week. "We'll go on delivering the same milk from the same cows," Yanuti said, "now, however, the cows will be in a pastureland instead of on a city lot." Mayor Isen congratulated the dairy for moving the cows elsewhere. (Herald Photo)

Board Named To Recount 229 Ballots

Retabulation of voting in the combined 46th precinct in the April 10 municipal election was ordered by the City Council Tuesday night and the recount has been scheduled for 10 a.m. Friday in the council chambers.

The order to check the voted ballots came after attorney David K. Lyman, who had brought up what he called an "apparent discrepancy," reviewed his findings for the councilmen. Lyman had said as many as 400 votes could be "missing."

City Attorney Sanley Remelmeier, who had said earlier that he did not believe the Council had jurisdiction in the case, said Tuesday that he had made further checks into the Election Code and decided that the jurisdiction was still with the city.

TABULATION of the votes in the precinct where 229 voters with a possible total vote of 687 for City Council candidates showed that only 185 votes were cast for all council candidates. Lyman told the councilmen he thought it was important to check into the tabulation "to maintain confidence in our voting procedure and to take steps to remedy the matter if there are discrepancies."

A special canvassing board was approved on the recommendation of City Attorney Remelmeier. Named to the board were Mervin M. Schwab, former mayor, inspector; Ruth Nadel, judge; the Rev. William Schatz, clerk; Ruth Clutter, clerk, and Julia Samps, clerk. Alternates to serve in the order named were Bob Haggard, former mayor; the Rev. Clifford Tierney, and Jerry Satuloff.

REMELEYER commented on reports that one of the unsuccessful candidates, John Barton, might seek an official recount, and said he had been told by Barton that he would seek such a recount, but that he had not received a formal notice.

Remelmeier said he and Gale Whitacre, city license inspector who was city clerk for the election, had talked to members of the board who tabulated the April 10 election, and that "there is reason to believe, after talking to these ladies, that they counted the vote correctly."

He pointed out that members of the board averaged about 25 years experience in city, county, state, and federal elections here.

Friday's canvassing of the votes will be open to the public.

Bob Morris In San Jose With Jaycees

Robert W. Morris, president of Southwest Blue Print Co., left Monday for San Jose and the California Junior Chamber of Commerce convention where he is considered a strong contender for the state presidency.

Morris is one of four candidates seeking the one-year term as head of the 10,000 member group — one of the largest Jaycee groups in the nation. The election will be held this weekend during the three-day convention.

HE HAS THE backing of the South Bay area and much of the support of Southern California. One other candidate from the southern area will vie with Morris for the top post while the other two candidates reportedly share the northern votes.

Long active in Jaycee work, Morris has been a member of the Beverly Hills and Torrance chapters and a past president of the latter group. Subsequently he served as state vice president and a national director, his current office.

IN A STATEMENT just prior to his departure for San Jose, Morris had this to say:

"Greater challenges confront the young man of today than at any time before in history. It is therefore incumbent upon us, the Jaycees, to rapidly develop the degree of leadership and service which will overcome the even greater challenges that lie ahead."

In his aggressive campaign, Morris has maintained a platform of "initiative, integrity and imagination over emotion and banner-waving decisions."

IF ELECTED, Morris promises "increased strength, stature and capability" for the California Jaycee organization.

In addition to his activities with the Jaycees, Morris is a member of the Torrance Chamber of Commerce, Lion's Club, Torrance Dental Health Assn., and a strong supporter of Boy Scouts of America. He is president of Southwest Blue Print Co. and Agenda Inc., a local public relations firm.

If successful, the election of Morris will focus national Jaycee attention on the Torrance area.

Ronald J. Williams, son of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert A. Williams, 2043 W. 255th St., Lomita, has been awarded a four-year General Motors college scholarship.

The top-ranked student in his senior class at Narbonne High School, 18-year-old Ronald plans to study mathematics at California Institute of Technology and hopes to obtain a Ph.D. degree.

In the summer of 1960, he was one of 30 students selected on a nationwide basis to attend the National Science Federation Math Camp at Florida State University. Last summer he was chosen to attend the Summer Science Program at the Thacher School in Ojai.

HE RECEIVED the coveted GM award on the basis of national competitive examinations taken by more than 20,000 high school seniors earlier this year. His leadership qualities and scholastic achievement were instrumental in his selection by a group of nationally known educators.

The scholarship was among 100 awarded through national competition by GM as part of its more than $7,000,000 a year program of aid to higher education. Some 305 additional GM scholarships are awarded directly by a select list of colleges and universities.

Ronald was president of the senior boys' service organization and was named an Epsilon, the highest honor given by his high school for potential leadership in the community.

FOR CHARITY . . . Businessman Abe Robinson presents check for $500 on behalf of the Downtown Torrance Lions Club to Mrs. Bert M. Three Hurt In Plant Accidents

Kenneth Wayne Jacobs, 26, of Santa Fe Springs was reported in serious condition at a local hospital yesterday after he was severely burned Tuesday while operating a felting machine at 540 Maple Ave.

Police said Jacobs stepped into a felt-covered hole on the second story of a structure, causing him to stumble and pull 400-degree tar onto him as he fell.

JACOBS WAS working on the construction site of Stanley Home Products. He was operating the felting machine for the Premier Roofing Co. of Montebello, police said.

Two men were reported in fair condition yesterday at Little Company of Mary Hospital after they were scalded in an industrial accident at the Dow Chemical Co., 305 Crenshaw Blvd.

Realtors Hit State Proposal

Strong opposition to Proposition No. 4 on the June 5 ballot was voiced here yesterday by Jack Schmidt, president of the Torrance-Lomita Board of Realtors.

Backing up action of other boards throughout California, Schmidt said the local realty board had gone on record against the proposal which "is being sold to the public as housing for the aged and physically handicapped."
