A woman calls me a cur. Can you imagine? This is how she put it:

"Dear Sir, you cur! Do you want to know what it feels like to be pregnant? It is particularly fresh in my mind since I have a 10-day-old baby—my fourth by the way.

"First you take a turkey about eight or nine pounds and tie it around your waist. (Most women gain more than this. But we'll let that go for the moment.)

Pride in Pregnancy Urged by Marco

Then you wear the turkey night and day for about three months. Now, no cheating! You cannot take the turkey off or take a bath or do other things you have to do.

"If you see a particularly fetching garment you'd like to buy you will have to forgo the pleasure. And with all of this you will not have heartburn, morning nausea and backache.

"In the meantime, care for your children, care for your husband, cook your meals, do your shopping and, above all, stay charming.

"When the time comes for you to be relieved of your burden (and who knows at what strange hour that will be?) simply pull the string and your turkey will fall off without the added indignity of your having to give birth to it.

"Sincerely, Mrs. R. R."
"Mon Dieu, so having a baby is like carrying a turkey. Why didn't someone tell me before?"

I realize that the period of pregnancy is a difficult one for many of you women, but it is not I who desecrate motherhood, as this woman claims, but those of your sex who haunt the streets like swollen horrors from another planet.

Because you're lucky enough to be permitted to bear children when so many other women wish they could and can't, it behooves you to display pride in your condition.

Keep in mind an old dilapidated house badly in need of repairs and paint. You'll realize instantly that very few persons will admire it or even want it. The same is true of a pregnant woman in a rundown, unsightly condition.

Some of you dare think that because you're about to give birth you're something special. You're only special as long as you work at being something special, and that's being pregnant and attractive at the same time—to him and to me.

Scouting Exposition Slated for Feb. 15

The future is going to be knocking at your door in the next few days, and it will only cost you one dollar.

Cub Scouts, Boy Scouts, and Explorers will sell tickets to the Scouting Exposition scheduled for Feb. 15-24 in conjunction with the Sports, Vacation and Travel Show at the Shrine Exposition Hall.

The Cubs, Scouts, and Explorers will sell their Scouting, Vacation and Travel Show tickets for $1 each. Each person who buys a $1 ticket to the Scouting Exposition will also be admitted free to the Sports, Vacation and Travel Show. Regular tickets to the Sports, Vacation and Travel Show will sell for $1.50 each.

Sales of tickets will continue until Feb. 10. Proceeds from the scouting sale will go entirely to the support of local scouting activities. The Cubs, Scouts, and Explorers who sell tickets will be vying for a group of valuable prizes, both for their units and for themselves.

The Scouting Exposition, which will include a stage show, pet show, and booth displays of all phases of scouting, will offer an opportunity for the public to acquaint itself with the many facets of the character-building work of the Boy Scouts.

In a 10-day period CARE rushed food, textiles and tools to victims of earthquakes in Iran and Italy, floods in Pakistan and a typhoon in Hong Kong. Contributions to CARE food crusade assured overseas stockpiles of packages to be sped to disaster scenes.
