

Prom Week Fever Hits THS Campus

By JIM WALKER
Student Reporter

Good morning, readers! I am your high school correspondent, Jim Walker, a freshman at Torrance High School. I attended Torrance Elementary School for two years, and now will be giving you news about students at Torrance High School.

Torrance High School, of course, is a school for the residents of Torrance and one in which they can be proud. It has a well-rounded curriculum and an expert teaching staff headed by Dr. Carl Ahee, principal. The school now is expanding to meet the ever increasing enrollment.

THE FACULTY of Torrance High School, the city's first high school extends an invitation to parents of its students and other civic minded persons to visit the school.

THIS IS "Prom Week" at Torrance High and the students have cleverly devised a plan for raising money for the traditional Senior Prom.

Throughout the week, a variety of entertainment is being offered which includes a dance, a movie, exhibitions, and other entertainment.

Students have been offered ticket books costing $1.25 which contain five tickets, good for admission to the week-long series of events. The money earned from the sale of ticket books will help finance the annual Senior Prom.

Spring will be a busy time at Torrance High and I will be bringing you reports on the activities of the school in coming editions of The HERALD.

Store Offers Savings on Family Shoes

Among the newest members in the Greater Torrance area's growing family of quality retailers is Jack Caldwell's Carson Bootery, 1221 W. Carson St., located in the Carson Center at Carson Street and Normandie Avenue.

Caldwell, a veteran of 37 years in the shoe business, has sold shoes and managed stores in the Southwest area.

The new Carson Bootery carries shoes for men, women, and children and guarantees savings will be at least 25 to 50 per cent on each pair.

Nationally famous brand names are available among the shoes offered for each member of the family. Each customer gets individual attention when selecting shoes, and children are treated with particular care to assure a proper fitting shoe, Caldwell said.

A full line of children's orthopedic shoes will be offered at great savings, he added.
