Catch a Late One? Here's Three Tips

by Count Marco

Any woman over 40 who catches a husband, then doesn't work at making him believe he got the cream of the crop and is therefore the luckiest man in the world, is not worth the salt he puts on your table.

By the age of 40 you should have learned enough tricks to keep him enthralled, in love and hanging on for the end of time.

Somehow sadness strikes me when I see that, unlike your European sisters, the older you get the less you learn. Too often do I pick up the paper and read that you were married happily at 40 and regret bitterly at 41.

To keep the rough edges smooth around your late marriage, consider these three factors and put them into practice: attitude, light, and time.

Attitude is a daily thing. It's what you awaken with in the morning and carry uppermost in your mind through the entire day and evening. Take each day by itself. Forget about yesterday and don't worry about tomorrow. They put lines in your face, and at that age you can't afford any more.

Each morning decide that this is the one day in his life that will be very special and you work toward that end. As a daily thought it makes his every day special and you extremely important. Simple when you get in the habit.

Lights are important after 40. Never have in your home any light that is not completely shaded. Bulbs for too-bright light show up every small imperfection and blemish. Far too many of you get careless. Even great personalities who know better often overlook this important ingredient of any illusion.

And finally, time. You must spend more time on your preparation in the morning and evening.

Application of cosmetics takes more time and practice. Consideration of what to wear becomes a practical problem in putting on and taking off, matching colors and accessories until you have the right combination before he arrives at home.

This can take hours if you're the smart over-40, minutes if you're the typical dowdy, frumpy over-40 looking-60 and don't-care-anyway type.

Put them all together, they spell happiness. How hard do you want to work for your share?
