

Moose Lodge Dedicates New Emblem

Dedication of a new moose head, emblem of the Loyal Order of Moose, was held at Torrance Moose Lodge, 1744 W. Carson.

The new emblem, made possible through the generosity of donors of the men and women of the Torrance lodge, was obtained by Newton Henricks of Irricana, Alberta Canada on a hunting trip last fall. The antlers measure over 50 inches tip to tip.

James D. McCune, vice president of South Central district of the California Moose Assn. and past governor of Torrance Lodge, officially presented the emblem to James A. Evans, present secretary and past governor of the local lodge. Evans has been active in Moose activities for over 50 years. Donors who made emblem a reality are Women of the Moose members: Lorraine Walker, Mrs. James Evans, Mrs. James Baudin and Mrs. Noel E. Peacock. Donors from Loyal Order of Moose included: Dan Hutchinson, Clarence Inman, Melvin Coates, James D. McCune, Charles R. Britt Jr., George Clay, Douglas Dixon, Vernon Knowlin, B. E. Finke, Arthur Galinsky, Dan Desmond and James Baudin.

Dick Davin Named New 'Warrior Life' Editor

Handling the top editorial position for the fall edition of El Camino College's campus magazine, Warrior Life, will be Dick Davin who will serve as editor-in-chief on the publication during the semester.

Davin, a resident of Torrance, is in his second year as a journalism major.

The new editor-in-chief has held positions on the college newspaper and has served in the ECC press bureau. He was layout editor on the first edition of Warrior Life, published in June of this year.

SERVING as a reporter, then news, sports and feature editor in successive semesters with the Warwhoop, Davin has a well-rounded background in college publications.

In addition to holding positions on campus publications, Davin has served as commissioner of athletics and sophomore class treasurer at El Camino.

At present Davin is executive secretary of the Alpha Eta chapter of Beta Phi Gamma, a national junior college journalism society.

Warrior Life is a campus publication depicting the various facets of EC college activity. It was published for the first time last spring.

The magazine replaces the old Warrior yearbook. The new editor-in-chief feels the magazine is the solution to the problems encountered in selling an annual or semi-annual campus publication.

The Warrior-Life staff, led by adviser Don W. Brown, hosted some 300 high school yearbook staff members from 20 neighboring high schools last week. The production-aid program was conducted in the Communications Center, in which the magazine and other journalism offices are located. Publication date for Warrior Life is Jan. 14.
