

Vane Opens New Agency In Torrance

Ray Vane, Torrance's newest car dealer, has opened a sales and service facility on Pacific Coast Highway at Denry Road. The new agency will sell and service Valiants, Plymouths, Chryslers and Imperials.

The facilities are located on a two-acre site next to the Torrance airport and include a large showroom, parts and service departments and a used car lot. The service facilities are equipped for 18 factory-trained mechanics.

Art Rene will head the service department. His department will remain open until 9 p.m. on Mondays. Vane, president, and vice-president Jack Harris have been in the new and used car business in Los Angeles since 1933. Another sales and service agency is located in Inglewood.

Torrance showrooms will be open seven days a week.

To help villagers in West Africa build more schools, CARE delivers packages of construction tools as gifts from Americans who donate funds to the package-sending relief agency.

Hubby Volunteers for Wife, Winds Up With the Chores

When City of Hope sponsors were seeking volunteers for their Hope Sunday drive which was held last Sunday, R. C. Madary of 2218 W. 239th St. just knew they could count on his wife to help.

So, he volunteered her services. As it turned out, he should have checked, because she had made other plans.

Madary had volunteered, however, so he decided the only thing to do was make the rounds himself.

"I was stuck," is the way he put it.

B. Madary was in for a surprise. Up and down the 2200-block of 239th Street Sunday he found a generous response as he made his requests for help for the world-known City of Hope.

"It's gratifying to realize one person is able to do something to help so wonderful a cause," he said after completing his canvass Sunday.

How did he do? Very good, he reports. In fact, he might find himself on the list automatically the next time the City of Hope is seeking volunteers.

Marines Offering Booklet On Proper Display of Flag

Every American home should have a flag and display it on several occasions during the year when patriotic displays are appropriate, and according to Gunnery Sergeant Sam Zavyodny of the local Marine Corps Recruiting office, many people are not up to date on the proper display of our flag.

Along with the flag, every home needs a booklet with the latest complete information on respect to the flag and the proper way to display it. This booklet is available at the Marine Corps office at 2165 Torrance Blvd., free of cost for those interested residents who want to know the full story of the history of the flag, as well as how to fly it, Sergeant Zavyodny says.

Since the beginning of our country, Marines have served honorably and faithfully around the globe under the different flags that have signified the United States. It is through this long, colorful association with history that the Marines of today become connected with Old Glory.

The few copies of the booklet remaining are being given away on a first come, first served basis, Sam said. Anyone with need of one of these important books should drop by the Torrance Marine office soon.

Wagner Chorale Slated at Bowl

Roger Wagner, head of the music department at Marymount College, will conduct the 60th appearance of his Roger Wagner Chorale on July 11 in the Hollywood Bowl. The chorale will sing with the Los Angeles Philharmonic Orchestra in a program paying tribute to Giuseppe Verdi's 150th anniversary.

On the following day, Dr. Wagner will conduct the chorale in a program of Rodgers and Hammerstein music.
