The Count Has a Word For All Beatle Lovers

By Count Marco

American teen-age girls are becoming a much bigger mess than even I dreamed possible. This downgrading is evident in your disgusting adulation of four horrors shipped out of England to throw the country into a shock.

I am referring to something called The Beatles.

Certainly, I remember when your mother at your age screamed and fainted over a then-young singer known as Frank Sinatra. But at least Frank was a clean-cut young man with talent. What can you say for the Beatles?

Their one claim to fame, apparently, is that they need haircuts. Certainly it can't be talent that makes you carry on so revoltingly.

How can you? How is it possible that you girls, supposedly taught that neatness and cleanliness are next to godliness, can take to your little minds such unkempt, ill-attired nothings, is beyond me.

Ah, what has happened to the good days when girls used to try to impress by being neat and clean? As I understand it, you have added insult to injury by adapting their gruesome hair styles to your heads.

What more proof to show that your head is truly empty than that you must cover it with such an unsightly mop?

Have you no respect for sex, no pride for femininity? Not only do I deplore your adopting such persons as idols, but your public behavior when in their presence leaves much to be desired.

Some of you, I hope, who watched that telecast of the Beatles were writhing in embarrassment and shame at the actions of your sisters. Not all of you, I'm sure, could have been carried away with so much bad taste.

If you must pick someone to honor and emulate, why not pick someone worth imitating.

Surely there is someone you can select. If it can't be your mother, then perhaps one of your school teachers, or the mother of a girl friend who is luckier than you.

Try to be the first girl in your set or your school to show some intelligence. Try, even if the effort exhausts you at first, to be and act like a young woman instead of an unreasonable facsimile of an animal in a zoo.

Let other girls, the inferior ones, go buggy about things like Beatles. Carry your head high with pride, knowing that you're not part of such a vulgar rat pack.

Instead of standing in line for hours waiting to view something better left under cover, utilize that time practicing personal grooming, walking, sitting, voice lessons and even reading, if you can manage something headier than comic books.

Remember these rules of mine, no matter where you are: A respectable young woman never raises her voice in public, nor performs in any fashion other than decorous.

To do otherwise brings the wrath of my disapproval down on your shaggy heads. You don't want that, do you?

Eleven Seniors Listed for State Scholarship Finals

Eleven seniors at Bishop Montgomery High School have been named semi-finalists by the California State Scholarship Commission, according to school officials.

The seniors are: Richard Lucero, John Webb, John Pusey, Michael Binkley, Russell Moore, Martin Groat, Everett B. Ender, Frances Hanson, Catherine Dolan, Stephen Price, and Colleen O'Hara.

Arthur Marmaduke, executive director of the commission, said the semi-finalist standing is based on scores on the Scholastic Aptitude tests given by the College Entrance Examination Board.

Each semi-finalist must now establish financial need for a state scholarship. Transcripts of the student's grades and activities in high school must be submitted to the commission.

Improvements include widening of the street and installation of curbs and gutters from 212th Street to a point 400 feet north of Carson Street.

The jurisdiction of the roadway will revert to the City of Los Angeles when improvements have been completed.
