

New Lomita Apartments Are Opened

Balanced power kitchens are the highlight of a new 52-unit apartment project now open for public inspection at 2590 Narbonne Ave., Lomita, according to owner Jack Wood of Harbor City.

Planned for maximum convenience, the new kitchens feature modern gas appliances built into formica counters and natural finished cabinets. Adequate wiring and plenty of outlets for electric appliances have been installed.

The new apartments were designed by Frank B. Wilson, AIA, and include two one-bedroom units, 44 two-bedroom apartments, and six three-bedroom floor plans. The project is completely landscaped and carry out the redwood and stucco theme of the structure. All apartments are carpeted and draped. Central gas water heating, forced air heating, and a large heated pool are other features of the new units.

The new development is located a half block south of Pacific Coast Highway on Narbonne Avenue. They are convenient to schools, churches, and major shopping centers in the area.

The unfurnished units begin at $138 per month, with gas utilities included in the rental price.

Weideman Named To Committee on Teacher Tenure

Keith A. Weideman, a fifth grade teacher in the Torrance Unified School District, has been appointed to the tenure committee of the California Teachers Assn. (CTA).

Dr. Arthur F. Corey said the tenure committee studies and recommends means of legislation to protect teachers against unjust dismissal.

Weideman, who resides at 3121 Sonoma St., is serving his first term on the CTA committee.

Harvey Aluminum Earns Award for Performance

Harvey Aluminum Inc., of Torrance, has been honored for outstanding efforts in support of the Zero Defects program at Martin Company's Denver division.

Zero Defects is an incentive program for employees and suppliers, to insure on-time delivery of materials and products, of highest quality, at lowest possible prices.

Martin-Denver's projects include the family of Titan intercontinental ballistic missiles, and the Titan III Standard Space Launch System—all under contract to the U.S. Air Force. Martin-Denver also makes the propellant tanks for the first and second stages of the Air Force's Gemini-Titan II Launch Vehicle.

TWO HARVEY officials, sales manager Charles Hayes and marketing manager Vern Ammerman, were presented with a framed plaque during a luncheon meeting here last week.

H. B. Gunther, Martin-Denver's director of material, made the presentation.

Harvey was cited because of its superior efforts in designing and producing a group of fuel line flanges for Titan II—all during a 10-day period. The unusually short delivery period was required because of a design change.

"The combined action of Harvey's engineering, production and metallurgical people reflects the highest credit in the difficult task of engineering, planning and manufacturing of parts with quality assurance built into these parts from the very beginning."

Carson Seniors Sit for Pictures

Seniors at Carson High got their senior portraits last week. The classmates will now be able to select a picture for the yearbook and order special enlargements if they wish.

Both color and black and white prints, ranging from wallet size photos to standard enlargements are available.
