Filing Will Close Today

Local politics were near the boiling point today—the last day for candidates to file for the April 8th city election.

Already in the race for city council were Victor E. Benstead, Albert Isen, and Nick Drake—candidates on the Torrance Unified Taxpayers ticket.

Others who have filed for the council race include Ed Karlow and Jack White. Mayor Bob Haggard is expected to file before the deadline today.

Both Marvin Schwab and Mrs. A. H. Thomas took out petitions to file for office. Neither one revealed whether they were taking the petitions out for themselves or someone else. It is known, however, that Mrs. Thomas is circulating a petition and plans to toss her hat in the ring for the City Council.

As the Press closed its forms, Mrs. Harriet V. Leech, filling out an unexpired term for City Treasurer, appeared to be the only candidate to replace herself.

Most public speeches involve a tremendous waste of time on the part of audiences.

Clarkson Joins Western Auto

J. S. "Jack" Clarkson, formerly with Columbia Steel Company, and well known in Torrance for the past five years, this week joined Gambles Western Auto Supply, as the company's new appliance store manager.

Clarkson, who has four youngsters—two boys and two girls, ranging in age from six months

Clarkson is a Mason and a member of the Methodist church. Two of his children attend Torrance High School. The third one is enrolled at Greenwood School.

Adult Classes At High School

New classes in drama, speech and personality development are now open to those interested in personal grooming. A workshop class offered by the Torrance School of Adult Education is now starting its second semester of the year and new members are invited. The class is held every Tuesday evening from 7 to 10 p. m. in Room 101 of the High School.

This term the class will emphasize the growth and development of the personality through the use of drama and speech, states Dan D. Desmond, instructor of the course. Speech training for those in local clubs and organizations will be given special attention.

J. S. CLARKSON joins Gamble's Western Auto Supply as appliance store manager.
