Injunction to Limit Gravel Pit Operation

The City of Torrance last Friday filed a lawsuit aimed at restricting the present operation of the Torrance Sand and Gravel Products. Entered in Los Angeles Superior Court, the action charges that the company's pit at 25701 Crenshaw has exceeded limits of a zoning variance granted in October, 1948, and that the operation is a hazard and a nuisance to near-by residents.

Donald Armstrong, who filed the suit for the city, said he will make a motion for temporary injunction next week. This, if granted, would be effective in about two or three weeks.

The complaint filed by Armstrong alleged that the firm is using more than the 50 acres specified by the variance and that a 100 x 80 foot pond on elevated ground endangers homes located below. It is also charged that the pit is operated without precautions against noise and dust. Armstrong, a local attorney, was retained by the city council to handle the matter after residents of the near-by Pacific Hills tract complained about the pit. Meanwhile, another housing development is being completed adjacent to the facility.

Named as defendants in the action are Thomas H. Block and Charles W. Shepard, operators of the pit; K. Sande Senness, Peter Del Re and Agnes Rel Re, owners of the property.
