verdict of City Prosecutor Boris S. Woolley who is studying the matter this week.

Denial

Denial of some of the charges made in the investigation came in a letter submitted by Harry Apter, attorney for the contractor.

Arguments presented were as follows:

- 1) It is erroneous and untrue that foundations and footings have been placed wholly or in part on filled ground without evidence of sufficient soil compaction. The tract is not a filled ground tract and does not require compaction.
- 2) It is false that floor joists exceed the span and deflection limits. The contractor was never so notified.
- 3) It is erroneous that lintels or headers over garage door openings are not supported on the floor slab. The generally accepted practice has been followed whereby the foundation is put in first and the slab poured over the foundation. By looking deep enough the foundation would have been found.
- 4) There is no requirement stating that foundation footings must be placed at an 18-inch minimum depth. Wherever steel reinforcements were used 12-inch depths were permitted and legal.
- 5) There has never been a change in the structural features of the houses from the original plans and what changes were made were never detrimental.

Apter declared that the homeowners' remarks have harmed the homeowners since the values of their homes are bound to suffer by what they

The fact that the investigator has made the various charges does not indicate that these are true, the contractor's attorney further stated.
