GOOD HOUSEKEEPING . . . In order to avoid contamination, operators who handle suspected radio-active or contaminated materials do so by using the "Hot Box," which keeps articles isolated from the operator. Here Vance Fleming, of the County Health Department, shows how it's done while George Powell, assistant director of civil defense for Torrance, looks on.

TORRANCE FIRST TO HOLD CIVIL DEFENSE WORKSHOP

The first civil defense workshop for health, medical and welfare services was held in Torrance one whole day last week, according to George Powell, assistant director of civil defense.

The idea is something entirely new and county officials may set up similar workshops in other cities and hold them periodically as a result of the experimental workshop held here.

Representatives of all the civil defense groups and P-TA's were invited.

A first aid station and equipment were set up during the morning session and welfare services were discussed during the afternoon.

One of highlights of the day was the display of the mobile radiological laboratory.

The laboratory, which looks like an armored bank car, costs about $16,000. There are 17 of these in the State, California being the only state which has them, an official stated.

The laboratory is intended for health and civil defense and is used for testing contaminated materials.

Los Angeles county itself has four of the 17 units. There are only about 24 men in the county

Scouts Featured

The North Torrance Elementary P-TA held their first association meeting last night, October 13, in the school auditorium. Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts were featured on the program, and the theme of the evening was "Ya'll Come," in keeping with the western theme to be used this year.
