Local Little Theater Group Local Little Theater Groups

The Hampton Players met recently with the Palos Verdes Players and the Manhattan Players at the home of Mrs. Claude (Helen) Ferrel, 724 Calle de Arboles in Hollywood Riviera, to further plans for a coordinating council formed by the three local little theatre groups. The formation of the council was presented by Stan Johnson, president of the Palos Verdes Players, to the groups several months ago.

Presidents and officers of the three groups have chosen the name "The Players Circle" for the players' coordinating council, and while each of these popular organizations is a member of "The Players Circle," each will remain completely autonomous.

Purposes of the council are to stimulate further interest in little theater in this area, coordinate production schedules, and to exchange ideas.

For their first joint venture of producing a show for the public, "The Players Circle" will present two weekends of one act plays, November 26 and 27 and December 3 and 4 at Pier Avenue School in Hermosa Beach.

Hampton Players was organized in Torrance about four years ago, most of its members being residents of the Torrance area. They have just concluded their production of "The Curious Savage" which was presented at Redondo Beach High School.

HELEN FERREL ... President of Hampton Players, Torrance little theater group, was hostess for recent meeting of three local players' groups.

Party Fashions Hit New Opulent Look

By MARY BARRETT, Women's Editor

As the fall and winter social season is upon us, we turn our attention on how we want to look at forthcoming parties, dances, little dinners, and gala occasions. Never before have we had a more brilliant selection to choose from... textures, colors, and designs are offered to suit every occasion, every figure, and all budgets.

New Opulence Seen

There is a new opulence shown in even the simplest cocktail dress... the subtle glow in the new acetates... brocades... velvet in the entire costume or merely a rich touch of trim... jeweled trims... dewey sequins, sometimes set with pearls or rhinestones... fur trims... to mention several.

For those who like sparkle and gaiety for informal entertaining we ran across an outstanding black felt swirl of a skirt at Renee's. This captivating creation was scalloped at both hemline and waist, with gala oversize sequins centered by rhinestones scattered here and there around a provocative pink felt elephant which was outlined and embellished with silver braid. The same shop offers top-mates for this skirt in scoop-necked blouses or sweaters of either black or matching pink. There was a particularly eye-catching black 'lanamere' encrusted with pearls and brilliants.

Honey-toned Unichrome

Another exciting felt skirt ensemble at Renee's featured honey-colored velveteen for the boat-necked top, the same velveteen edged with sparkly braid used as applique on the camel-toned felt circular skirt. These unichrome colors would be particularly captivating for red-heads or blondes.

Browsing through this smart little Torrance shop we found several sheaths suitable for big or little dinners. One we found particularly electrifying was a winter white watered faille, so smart in its understated use of rich black velvet piping on the edge of a huge stiffened collar and one of the pockets. Small rhinestone clips punctuated the black velvet scroll on one side of the wide-necked collar and the pocket of the narrowly cut skirt.

Simple Line—High Color

Stressing high color with simplicity were two dresses in the new blues; a peacock blue silk shantung taffeta trimmed only with self piping at the V-back and U-front neckline, and at the low-cut waist (very new) with the full skirt billowing from the piping at the hipline. The other a flame blue fitted velveteen jumper, its simplicity offering a multitude of accessory possibilities.
