THS Grad Receives
Journalism Honor

David M. Parton, graduate of Torrance high school, became one of the five first members of Beta Phi Gamma, national honorary journalism fraternity, to represent El Camino college Saturday.

Parton, commissioner of publications and former editor of the Warhoop, news weekly of the college, was initiated with William G. Gooch of Inglewood, photographer; Claudia Archuleta, Manhattan Beach, feature editor of the Warhoop and activities editor of the college yearbook; Richard T. Baylor, Manhattan Beach, managing editor of the Warhoop; Janice Gobel, Redondo Beach, associate news editor of the Warhoop, and Bruce Russell, who was initiated as an associate member for his outstanding contributions to journalism in the field of cartoons.

Russell Speaks
Russell, the Pulitzer and Freedom Foundation award-winning political cartoonist of the Los Angeles Times, addressed the national convention of the fraternity, which met at East Los Angeles junior college.

The new El Camino chapter, Alpha Eta, is one of 30 Beta Phi Gamma groups throughout the nation. Most of these are located in the Southern California area. To be eligible for membership, a student must hold a position of responsibility on a publication staff, maintain required grade averages, and receive the recommendation of his advisor and the executive
