New Market
Opens Soon

"Construction of the new Foods Co., market, at 174th street and Crenshaw boulevard, is coming along better than we planned originally," announced Ben Schwartz, vice-president of the progressive food organization. "Before long we should be able to open the doors to the public."

New market, said to cost approximately $1 million, will feature all the latest improvements for the convenience of its customers. These include a parking lot with space for more than 300 cars, wide aisles, asphalt-tile floors, and scientifically planned lighting for ease of shopping. There will be 12 checkstands for fast service.

Foods Co. will feature only the finest food products at the lowest prices, according to market officials. All food placed on sale in the new market will be personally selected by key personnel. Ben Pass will be head produce buyer for the entire organization.

Meat department of the market, will be under the supervision of Irwin Kaser. It will feature only guest quality meats at prices no higher than announced. All meat preparation will be in full view of the public.
