A registered nurse, whose identity remains a mystery, applied artificial respiration and was gone before Elliott could open his eyes. The boy told his parents that it took only two pressures to revive him.

Family Didn't Know

Elliott returned home Monday. His mother did not know about the accident until she learned of it from reporters who contacted her for information.

Mrs. Elliott, who is taking a summer course at USC, was planning on taking a final examination that day.

"I'm afraid I won't be in any condition to take the exam," she explained.

The boy's father, although hearing about the fantastic story at work, did not realize at the time that it was his own son who was involved.

He did not learn the full story until he returned home and was given a first-hand account of it by his son.

Young Elliott appeared on the Art Linkletter show Tuesday to tell of his experience and was given a 21" TV set.

Reward

It was announced at that time that the sponsors of the show are offering $100 to the nurse who saved Elliott's life and also a reward to anyone who has information leading to her identity.

"I hope they will locate the woman," Mrs. Elliott said. "But who knows, maybe she did not want anyone to know who she was for reasons best known to herself."

RABIES...

120-Day Quarantine

In the meantime, the Torrance area branch of the Health Department has imposed a 120-day quarantine in the 169th st. and Inglewood area in Lawndale and a portion of North Torrance.

This action was taken following the death of another rabid dog in that area who bit one person and had saliva contacts with nine others, all of whom are presently undergoing the painful and dangerous Pasteur treatment.

The dog, a mixed black and white cocker, was owned by Walter Rinnert of 4750 W. 169th st., Lawndale.

Taking Treatments

The dog bit Roy Cullen of 4702 W. 169th st. severely around the hand and wrist. Nine other contacts are reported and all are taking Pasteur treatment.

All strays in the area will be picked up immediately, health department officials stated.

In recent considerations of a compulsory anti-rabies vaccination law for dogs, three Torrance councilmen defeated such a measure. They were Councilmen Nick Draie, Mervin Schwab, and Willis Blount.

Voting for such a law were Mayor Albert Isen and Councilmen Victor Benstead.

The council voted to place the matter on the April ballot instead and let the voters decide the issue.

Violation of this law is punishable by a $500 fine or six months in jail or both.
