OFFICERS ARREST 'PROWLER'

While searching for a prowler in the Southwest park area last week, Officers Sam Piazza and Wally Nitz found what they were looking for when they arrested Jesse R. Bond, 27, of 4543 Narrot st. as he was snooping around the premises at 4552 Talisman.

After asking a few questions and searching him, the officers arrested him on suspicion of burglary, grand theft auto, and prowling.

Bond allegedly was in possession of a car owned by Emanuel Schwartz, 4564 Cadi-

Apart, they're liquid... together, they're solid —and this strange reaction helps make parts for your car... your television set... and even your tableware

By THEMSELVES, these two liquids flow as freely as water. Yet when poured together they quickly turn into a solid—harder than many metals.
THESE AMAZING LIQUIDS which become a solid, without applying heat or pressure, are man-made chemicals—one called a resin, the other a curing agent. The chemists have coined the name, epoxy, for the resulting plastic.
FROM YOUR KITCHEN to the automobile plant, you will find epoxies now at work. In the latest tableware, they seal knife blades in their handles, keeping them everlastingly tight.
Epoxies are being used to make huge dies to stamp out automobile parts, airplane wing sections, and other varied shapes. These dies can be made in little more than half the time it takes to make all-metal dies, and at substantial savings, too.

DELICATE PARTS for television, radio, and other electronic equipment are embedded in epoxies to protect them from moisture and vibration.
MANY INDUSTRIES now are looking to epoxies for help in making better things for you. Developing and producing epoxies—as well as long-familiar plastics—is one of the many important jobs of the people of Union Carbide.
