

CRABGRASS PROBLEM CAN BE LICKED NOW

BY LEWIS LORING

If you spent any time at all during the past year in trying to control crabgrass in your diondra and lawn, you can practically eliminate any such work and worry next year by the proper use of a product called Pax.

Pax is a dry chemical, which when applied at the rate of five pounds per one hundred square feet of area will kill the seed of this pesty weed and you will have no germination during next spring, summer or fall.

It sounds almost too good to be true, but it is very effective if applied now. In addition to the controlling of crabgrass, Pax will give your lawn a feeding and kill certain soil pests—including sowbugs.

Considerable research has been done on this product, and you must apply it carefully according to the directions that your nursery and garden supply dealer will give you, and which is also printed on the bag for those who may forget.

Usually we homeowners wait until we see the Crabgrass seedlings emerging in the spring, and then we either try to dig them out or apply other means of killing them. Young seedlings may be fairly easy to control, but after they reach an adult stage, almost impossible. When Pax is applied at this time, the seed that is lying in the soil waiting for warmer weather, before germinating is killed.

Certain precautions are necessary in applying: do not breathe the dust or get it into your eyes or on the skin. Do not apply to new lawn areas with less than three months growth, or until the lawn has been cut twice. Avoid using where there are tender annual plants.

If you are in doubt as to whether your lawn has crabgrass or Bermuda grass, consult your nurseryman. Take him a sample. Although Pax is very effective in Crabgrass control, it won't do very much against Bermuda.

SOUTH BAY SHOPPING CENTER

May Co. To Locate at Hawthorne and 174th St.

May Co. this week announced plans to erect a 340,000 square foot department store in the new South Bay Shopping center, located at 174th Street and Hawthorne Blvd.

Tom May, executive vice-president of the May Department Stores company, in making the announcement, stated:

"We have selected the new South Bay Shopping Center as the site for our new store, because we are convinced that this will soon be the hub of retail activity in the entire South Bay shopping area, serving over 600,000 people. This is the largest population area in the nation not now served by any planned shopping center."

Sidney F. Brody, president of the Brody Investment company, Beverly Hills, owners and developers of the ultra-modern shopping center, said:

"We are delighted that a lease has been executed with the May Co. The inclusion of America's leading department store in South Bay shopping Center provides the perfect nucleus around which to build the most modern and efficient shopping center in the country."

Leading Firms Already Signed

Many of the country's leading firms have already leased space in South Bay Shopping Center. Among the tenants, are included J. J. Newberry company with 40,000 square feet, Ralph's Grocery company, 40,000 square feet, Thrifty Drug Stores company, 20,000 square feet, Bank of America, Gallenkamp Shoe company, Union Oil company and South Bay Bowling corporation.

Walter N. Marks, who negotiated the lease with the May company in his capacity as exclusive leasing agent for South Bay Shopping Center, stated:

"Negotiations are now under way which, when culminated, will result in the addition of several more of the nation's leading retail and service type shops to South Bay Shopping Center."

Latest Design

The project, when completed, will reflect a design principle that will make this one of the most efficient shopping centers in the world, according to a spokesman at Quincy Jones-Fredrick Emmons-Victore Gruen, associated architects responsible for the over-all design of the South Bay Shopping Center.

An entirely new concept and method of exterior and interior lighting will make shopping at night at the South Bay Shopping Center as easy and pleasant as shopping in natural daylight, explained the architects. Pedestrian traffic will be separated from vehicular traffic. Deliveries to all stores will be made from an underground delivery depot.

Parking areas will be strategically located to minimize walking distance from cars to shops.

A parking ratio of approximately three feet of parking space to each square foot of building, will provide parking facilities for more than 5,000 cars.

To Serve Extensive Area

The new shopping center will serve the communities of Redondo Beach, Torrance, Hawthorne, Lenox, Lawndale, Palos Verdes, Gardena, Manhattan Beach, Hermosa Beach, and El Segundo. "When completed, South Bay Shopping Center will be the perfect example of the modern one-stop shopping center concept. It will serve the entire South Bay area with the finest "blue-ribbon" group of retail, service and recreational type business establishments yet brought together," Marks stated.

Albert C. Martin and Associates, architects and engineers of Los Angeles, will design the new May Co. store.

Alcohol And Yule Spirit Don't Mix

The Christmas spirit is not to be mixed with alcoholic spirits. The County Board of Supervisors has decreed in ordering a ban on serving or consuming liquor at Christmas parties held in County buildings by County employees.

County Supervisor Kenneth Hahn pointed out that consumption of alcoholic drinks in County buildings is illegal in County buildings in the year 'round, but added that it was felt that the ban, first formally adopted in 1954, should be emphasized as the Christmas holidays draw closer.
