

North Wind Editors Attend Press Day At Redlands

By BONNIE WILLIAMS

Five sleepy editors of the North High "North Wind" and Advisor Topper Smith all took the day off from school to attend the 25th Annual Writers Week at Redlands University at 6:30 in the morning, March 7.

Those representing North High were Anne Rutledge, editor-in-chief; Bonnie Williams, managing editor; Leila Santor, feature editor; Vickie Almedia, news editor; and Ardene Smith, business and circulation editor.

We arrived at the university at 9:15 and proceeded to shell out $1.50 for registration and lunch.

We then went into the Memorial chapel for the announcement of awards. All schools and junior colleges that attended were invited to enter their newspaper for constructive criticism and judging.

The North Wind did not arrive in time to be judged with the rest of the papers, but the results will be sent to the school as soon as they are determined.

The El Camino "Warhoop" was awarded a superior in headlines, newswriting, and editing. It also received excellent for ads, features, and news coverage.

The next speaker was John Reese who spoke on Magazine Features. His features have appeared in Colliers, and Saturday Evening Post. He has also awards we attended a lecture at Watchorn hall by Ruth Schandorff on "Publicity and Public Relations."

Miss Schandorff was at one time associate west coast editor of Glamour Magazine and is now a top executive with the Ettinger company where she has served such accounts as the Brown Derby corporation, California bank, and Chrysler corporation's television series "Shower of Stars" and "Climax."

We managed to drive some thirty miles before someone in the front seat was hungry again, so we stopped at a little place that was just about big enough for the six of us, and we filled up again. Well we arrived home about 7:00 that night, tired and with sore feet, but ready to start to work again on the paper the next day.
