

Group Denies Endorsement

Republican Assemblyman Charles E. Chapel was charged this week with "falsely claiming endorsement of the California Teachers' association" by James Armstrong, chairman of the Forty-sixth Assembly District Democratic council.

Armstrong, a Torrance school teacher and member of the CTA, said: "The association does not endorse any candidate and that includes Chapel." Chapel made the claim in an endorsement of the California Teachers' association by James Armstrong, chairman of the Forty-sixth Assembly District Democratic council.

motion also included an alternate site.

Counter-Move

Drale then made a counter-motion calling for neighborhood recreation areas through Torrance rather than just a park in central Torrance.

The Recreation Commission recommendation actually called both for a centralized community park as well as neighborhood centers.

Drale was finally given a watered-down approval to have three individuals recommended by him meet with the Planning Commission, and Recreation Commission to study the whole issue further.

He appointed Robert Waegner, Hamilton Black, and George Bradford.

C. W. Olsen, of the Recreation Commission, exasperated by the political bickering, asked to be heard.

"For heavens sake, leave politics out of this," he implored the councilmen. "This recreation park is for the people of Torrance. Look for that point and not for the paltry sum the city will get from industry. Why stick industry right in the center of a residential area?"

Later on Olsen asked Drale if he would go for the park if the commissions came back with a recommendation for approval.

Drale, calling the chair unfair for permitting such a question to be asked, finally exclaimed touchily that he could not say at this time what he would do.

and welfare agencies supported by chest raised funds.

Advance Gifts Chairman Dr. Joseph P. Bay, with other local and harbor leaders, received a special merit award for "contributing outstanding leadership in making this community a better place to live."

Presenting the awards, Harbor Area Campaign Chairman James Visceglia commended local leaders and others of the more than 2000 chest volunteers who gleaned close to $85,000 or 97.72 per cent of the goal for

Tit For Tat

Councilman Drale's pet project, the improvement of Torrance's streets and highways, as well as the entrances and exits to the city, was picked apart, kicked around, and stalled along until finally receiving the council's general consent.

Isen and Benstead wanted to know where the money would come from; whether some of Drale's proposals were not already being taken care of (as they were); and what the status was on some of the jobs.

Isen made a motion to "table" the matter until a thorough report was available from the city manager and city engineer. Benstead sided with him. Blount, Schwab and Drale defeated the motion.

Benstead then moved to hold the matter up until after April 10 (the day of the election). Isen sided with him. Blount, Schwab and Drale defeated the motion.

Drale then made his motion. Isen and Benstead then indicated that of course they were "in favor of improving the streets" and joined in unanimous approval of Drale's original motion.

Sub-Divisions

That same evening Mayor Isen informed the council that he was adopting a new policy in voting on sub-divisions.

"I shall vote 'no' on any tract that a councilman abstains from voting on without giving his reason."

Councilman Drale abstained from voting on two tracts because he said he had "a financial interest in them (No. 22654, located southerly of 182nd st. and northerly of the proposed Freeway, westerly of Moneta
