WINS BACK SONS

Lon Chaney, as Jules Samenian in "The Golden Junkman," finds his sons have turned against him but he later manages to win back their respect by going to college in middle age. Play is first in a series of real-life stories by John Nesbitt, to be seen on Telephone Time each Sunday evening over the CBS television network, starting April 8.

NESBITT'S TRUE-LIFE STORIES TO BE SHOWN

True-life dramatizations from the files of master story-teller John Nesbitt will be televised on Telephone Time, the Bell System's first national video program, starting April 8.

The program will be seen each Sunday evening over the CBS television network.

Premier show in the series will feature Lon Chaney in the title role of "The Golden Junkman," the story of a contemporary Californian who got a college degree in middle age by literally memorizing the Encyclopedia Britannica.

Each dramatization in the series will be introduced by Nesbitt who makes his television debut as story teller for "Telephone Time." In his introduction he will show clues to the story, objects which have a special connection with the central character. The stories will include a wide variety in type, time and locale. All depict the reaction of a real human being to a real life problem, some in comic vein, others more seriously.

Nesbitt gained recognition for his own award-winning "Passing Parade" short subjects produced by MGM for 10 years and had the same role on the radio series.

The series is filmed at Hal Roach Studios in Hollywood. Hal Roach, Jr., is executive producer and Jerry Stagg is producer.
