Shell Adds Multi-Million Dollar Lab

Shell Chemical Corporation is building a multi-million dollar laboratory at its synthetic rubber plant at Torrance, California. R. C. Curdy, the president of the corporation said today:

McCurdy said that a new unit to produce a special latex for the manufacture of foam rubber products would be completed this fall.

Other parts of the plant's general expansion program include extensions to the butadiene facilities and modernization of the synthetic rubber (copolymer) unit. These phases of the program will also be completed in the fall.

The plant, which is the only one of its type west of the Rockies, is now the main supplier of general purpose synthetic for automobile tires, floor tiles and other rubber items manufactured in the west.

Since purchase from the government, the plant has consistently employed more than 1,200 workers with an annual payroll of more than $6,000,000. Considerable additional employment has been created during the construction period.
