Chic Fall Fashions Featured At Local Cerebral Palsy Show

"Autumn Leaves Parade" was the theme of the Cerebral Palsy center Fall Fashion show, October 12, at the YWCA. Mrs. Alice Coulson was chairman of the event.

Commentator Caroline Leonetti, who has taught charm, poise and grace at Marymount college in West Los Angeles, added descriptive highlights to the fashions modeled by 10 local residents. She not only has her own school of modeling in Los Angeles but appears on the "TV House Party" and "Queen for a Day."

Betty Boggio models a Chinese red 100% wool sheath dress at the recent Cerebral Palsy fashion show. The empire waistline is accented by the short doleman sleeves with a white trim. The mandarin neckline was another chic feature of the outfit donated by Benson's.

The models were: Betty Boggio, Pat Carver, Gena Greayer, Ruby Kellum, Ruth McDonald, Norma Mattauch, Eleanor Miller, Diane Stewart, Suzan Val, and Gaye Wilson who appeared in the newest of fall dress fashion design.

Suzan Val added a sophisticated note to the show with her "Rosenfeld original of California" dress from Moore's Women's wear. The black silk faille dress was lined with white taffeta with black dots accentuated by a matching half slip. Rhinestone buttons, a diagonal cut across the bodice and capped sleeves completed the outfit. Mrs. Anthony Durizzi, Rosalie Geesaman, and Gena Greayer were responsible for the autumn decorations which added color and atmosphere to the show as the models paraded stylishly before an enthusiastic audience.

All proceeds raised by the fashion show will help defray the cost of operating the cerebral palsy school at 1217 Cravens ave. The newly acquired building is staffed with a certified speech therapist, Miss Ruth Aptaker, and a registered nurse, Mrs. Rose Patrick, to offer the specialized training necessary for the cerebral palsied child.
