BRANDELLI-MAYA WEDDING VOWS EXCHANGED HERE

St. Margaret Mary's Catholic church was beautifully decorated Saturday, October 20, with chrysanthemums, gladioli and jib fern for the wedding of Miss Corinne Brandelli, 1635 257th St., and Carlos Maya, Avalon, Catalina Island.

Her gown was a long sleeved taffeta creation trimmed with d'Alancio re-embroidered lace. The beautifully styled bodice had a scooped neckline outlined in lace encrusted with sequins. Her full length skirt was accentuated by a peignoir effect at the hips that fell into a graceful train. The finger tipped French illusion veil was held neatly in place by a pearl and sequined tiara crown. She carried a casual cascade bouquet of butterfly orchids, stefanotis and ivy leaves.

Miss Dorothy Marrick, Van Nuys, maid of honor and Miss Shirley Brandelli, cousin of the bride from San Pedro, were attendants. They wore striking royal blue floor length taffeta gowns which added a distinct and brilliant contrast to the traditional white worn by the bride. The sleeveless bodice had a scooped neckline outlined with a softly crushed band which ended in a bow with floor length streamers. They carried white spider chrysanthemum bouquets accented with a few Autumn leaves.

Mother of the bride, Mrs. Anthony Brandelli added another colorful note to the bridal party as she wore a princess

POUNDAGE COLLECTED AT SCHOOL

Twenty-one thousand, nine hundred and sixty pounds of paper and 890 pounds of rags were recently collected by the students of the 223rd St. school.

Bernard Bornstein's class was responsible for bringing in the most paper for the upper division and won first prize for its herculean efforts. Competition, however, was much keener in the lower division race and judges decided to give honors to both Mary Patterson's third graders and Helen Hausman's second graders.

PTA members working on the drive were Mmes. Wayne H. Vinson, Gene LeRoy, Carl F. Laursen, Edward Kollmeyer, Donald King, Paul Kelso, Harry Hill, Charles Hamilton, David P. Goolsby, Michael DiMuro, Jack C. Cameron, Jay Carroll, Francis Anania, and Willis T. Albaugh.

A get acquainted meeting for room mothers was held Thursday morning by the 223rd St. school P-TA to familiarize the room mothers with their duties. One of the principal duties is to help mothers of each room to get acquainted and to encourage attendance at P-TA meetings. Room mothers are also called upon for various ways and means activities.

Room mothers may attend executive board meetings to offer their ideas and suggestions concerning P-TA business, but they do not have any vote on any matter until they are ratified as a board member, according to Mrs. David Goolsby, president. Mrs. Jack C. Cameron and Mrs. Michael DiMuro are room mothers representatives.

Two hundred and twenty-third Street P-TA with the room mothers help is now making final plans for the Halloween festival to be held the afternoon of October 31.
