Student Booked For Low Flying Without License

Hossen Shahim, 27, has a choice of paying $100 or spending 30 days in jail after flying his aircraft too low over houses immediately west of the Torrance Airport and north of the South High school building. Shahim, a student at El Camino College and a native of Sherez, Persia, was arrested Tuesday for low flying and for piloting a plane without his license. Police said he explained his actions by saying he had a friend who lived in the tract over which he was flying. Nearly 100 complaints were registered by irate residents who said the plane "buzzed" sometimes as close as 50 feet to the ground.
