

FROM PING PONG TO WRESTLING

Intramural wrestling is one phase of the extensive El Camino College athletic program. Providing Warrior students a wealth of recreation, the program, administered by Arthur Beale, offers everything from ping pong to swimming to touch football.

EC Intramural Sports Program Attracts 800

Providing opportunities for competitive athletic activities to those students unable to compete in intercollegiate sports, the intramural program at El Camino college attracts some 800 students annually.

Touch football, basketball, and softball are the three major sports activities offered under the program which is recognized as being outstanding in college circles. A regular season for basketball features a large tournament.

Faculty and student teams both take part in the softball season.

Other sports which are included in the program are track, swimming, wrestling, tennis, bowling, ping-pong and volleyball. Individual medals are offered in track, and one swim meet is held each semester.

Any student or faculty member is eligible to participate with competition between campus organizations, the backbone of the program. Strong independent teams enter all phases of the program, however. Co-educational sports are important in this program, in that every one may participate.

A great number of ex-high school lettermen take part in the activities, but college lettermen cannot play in their lettered sport. Each year an award is given to the outstanding athlete of the year.

An innovation this year is payment to referees, funds coming from the intramural budget of the Associated Students. Students administer the program with help from the faculty advisors, Mrs. Von Hershey and Arthur H. Beale. The program has a complete athletic insurance coverage.

There he goes! Get him! Were the cries to be heard as the second annual pig chase got underway last Monday. The pig got off to a fast start, as Johnnie Zamerla prodded it with his "vitalizer." The pig first ran, and then charged into its 100 pursuers. After the pile of the forty boys was separated, it was revealed that Joe Rubeo was in possession of the poor crushed pig.

Flameless electric cooking keeps more juice in your Baked Ham

In baking ham, juice is the secret of flavor—but flame evaporates juice

Here's why:

Flame needs air to breathe. A flame-heated oven constantly inhales dry air, exhales moist air—literally cooks meat in a hot draft that evaporates good juices. Ham, especially, can dry out that way. Because a 12-pound ham takes about 3 hours to cook. In that length of time, a flame oven can really dry up a lot of juice.

But when you cook it electrically, there's no draft of constantly changing air. Because there's no flame. You cook in moist heat, not dry heat. Result? More juice stays in the ham—and it tastes better.

Here are more good reasons for cooking electrically. It's far cleaner. And cooler and safer, too. Actually, electric cooking is the only modern way to cook. See your electrical appliance dealer soon.
