Hahn Asks 'Representative' Grand Jury Nominees

In a letter to each of the 90 Superior Court Judges of Los Angeles County, Supervisor Kenneth Hahn this week urged that nominees be chosen so that the 1958 Grand Jury will be "truly representative of the political, social and economic structure of this County."

Supervisor Hahn, who is chairman of the Board of Supervisors Committee on Superior Courts, declared that for some time he had been concerned over the fact that Republicans had held a numerical majority on the Grand Jury for the past several years.

Quoting figures supplied him by Registrar of Voters Benjamin S. Hite, Supervisor Hahn said that while the County-wide registration is Democratic, 1,315,821; and Republican, 1,000,668, the past three Grand Juries have been constituted as follows:

1955—16 Republicans, 3 Democrats
1956—18 Republicans, 1 Democrat
1957—15 Republicans, 4 Democrats

"The Grand Jury, I believe, should be nonpartisan in numerical fact and I am convinced that it is unwise for the overwhelming majority of the members to be from one political party. Such a condition is unfair to the Grand Jury and to the two major political parties," Supervisor Hahn declared.

"If the situation were reversed, with Democrats having such numerical superiority, it would be just as vulnerable to criticism, he continued. The office of Superior Court Judge is nonpartisan. Each judge nominates two persons to serve on the Grand Jury. A Grand Jury panel of 30 is drawn by lot from all the nominees, with the Grand Jury of 19 being chosen by lot from the panel. November 4 is the deadline for the judges to submit nominations for the 1958 Grand Jury.

In his letter to the judges, Supervisor Hahn noted that members of minority groups, such as Americans of Spanish-Mexican descent, Japanese, Chinese, Negroes and others are seldom nominated to serve on the Grand Jury.

"Retired businessmen, executives, or substantial citizens and retired Army Generals and having their own businesses, other military officers are usually the type of persons nominated for the Grand Jury," his letter continued. "I have noticed and trades are not often members who work in the crafts that small businessmen and bers of the Grand Jury."

"Under the Social Security

Act many very capable citizens are retiring and would have the Supervisor Hahn emphasized time and energy to render valuable service on the Grand Jury, that he was not criticizing, in any way, any of the individual members of past or present Grand Juries. "They are men and women of high character, dedicated to public service and well qualified to serve," he declared.

"I am offering these suggestions so that there can be no valid ground for criticism of the Grand Jury—so that it can continue its great public service to conclude."

The Superior Court of Los Angeles County consists of 90 Superior Court Judges, of which 67 are Republicans, 18 Democrats and five decline to state.
